It is now my pleasure to call on our student trustee, Stacie Seger, for the Student Recognition Awards. Stacie.

STUDENT RECOGNITION AWARDS

Ms. Seger:

Thank you, Chairman Schottenstein. I would like to invite my three students to join me.

I would first like to recognize Andrew Keaster from the College of Medicine. Andrew exemplifies the key attributes of a great professional student, with a notable emphasis on service to the community. During his undergraduate career at Missouri State University, Andrew served as a medical assistant for a semester at an HIV clinic in South Africa and volunteered over 200 hours annually to other organizations.

Since joining the Ohio State family, Andrew has only furthered his commitment to service. He has been an HIV test counselor for the AID Resource Center of Ohio since his first year, while also serving as the vice president of the International Health Interest Group. In the summer after his first year, Andrew competed for and received funding for an R25 grant to work with the Qingdao Red Cross, providing health care at free clinics in rural Chinese townships. He was the Student Coordinator of the Asian Free clinic during his second year, the president of the LGBT and Allies student group, and also participated as a tutor in the newly formed Peer Education Resource Elective, a group that provides academic support for students, by students. During his second year, he also volunteered at the Somali Health Initiative in Education, also known as SHINE, and served as a student member of the Admissions Committee. During Andrew's third year, he served as a class representative to the LCME (Liaison Committee on Medical Education) Student Report committee and chaired the Student Analysis Subcommittee. His peers have recognized his long service to the community by electing him to the Gold Humanism Honor Society. In 2012, Andrew received The Ohio State University Student Award for Excellence in Community Service.

For his fourth year at Ohio State, Andrew participated in a week-long provision of medical care to the underserved in Honduras last December. He also spent the first two months of this year in southwest Kenya as a part of his international rotations.

With his nomination of Andrew, Vice Dean for Education Daniel Clinchot said, "The achievement Andrew has shown in academics, coupled with the passion he has demonstrated for service to others, makes him an invaluable member of our profession and community. We are proud to count him among our members."

After graduation, Andrew will stay here at Ohio State to complete a residency in Internal Medicine, and plans to pursue a career in Primary Care.

Congratulations, Andrew!

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

As a buckeye for life, Ashley Weber completed her undergraduate and master's degrees at Ohio State and is currently pursuing a PhD in the College of Nursing on a Graduate Assistance in Areas of National Need (GAANN) Fellowship.

Ashley has completely immersed herself into her doctoral education. She has taken full advantage of research learning opportunities throughout the college, university, and at Nationwide Children's Hospital. Ashley is also committed to becoming appropriately trained in all methods and has dedicated extensive time, travel, and effort to attend national meetings to further her knowledge of child development and nursing research. She currently has one publication to date with one under revision, a second manuscript under revision, and two manuscripts in process.

Ashley's intelligence and passion for research is evident. Her integration of biology and behavior has allowed her to take a comprehensive approach for examining important neurodevelopmental issues confronting premature infants. Ashley has identified a significant problem plaguing premature infants. Her focus on the role of oxytocin as a measure of biologic processes supporting neurodevelopment is novel and innovative. To date, there are no published data describing this phenomenon in premature infants. Therefore, the anticipated findings of Ashley's research could lay the foundation for future study of biobehavioral mechanisms that maximize neurodevelopment. Furthermore, Ashley was awarded two research grants from the Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Theta Tau and the Ohio Nurse's Foundation.

Ashley is also an active member of the Council of Graduate Students, the Dean's Student Advisory Council within the College of Nursing, Ohio State's Wellness Collaborative, as well as many other professional organizations.

Dr. Deborah Steward, Ashley's academic and dissertation advisor, believes Ashley is one of the most gifted PhD students she has ever advised. Steward said, "I have no doubt that future premature infants will greatly benefit from the research that Ms. Weber will conduct. Ms. Weber embodies what the discipline of nursing needs relative to moving our science forward. She is a passionate, articulate young woman with unlimited potential as a nurse scientist and leader in the profession. If she pursues her career as a nurse scientist with the same enthusiasm and drive that she continually demonstrates in completing her doctoral education, she will have a lengthy and outstanding career."

After graduation, Ashley hopes to attain a nursing faculty appointment within a research-intensive university. As a NICU nurse, she wants devote her career to developing evidence-based nursing interventions.

Congratulations, Ashley!

David Twombly is a Juris Doctor Candidate in the Mortiz College of Law. Dean Alan Michaels describes David as one of the strongest students in the history of the Mortiz College of Law. "His class is the most academically gifted on record at our law school," Michaels said. "And Dave is the highest ranked student in the class by a substantial and unusual margin. He has excelled in an astonishing array of classes."

David has also been an important leader in the college. His peers selected him to serve as Editor-in-Chief of the Ohio State Law Journal. His selection and success in this role reflects not only his intellect and hard work, but also his generous and thoughtful approach to others. He is a Mortiz Merit Scholar and has been deeply engaged with the diversity and inclusion activities at the college, including participation in events such as the SPEAK group and the OutLaws.

David's legal experience is also profound. He has worked in the Legal Aid Society of Columbus and the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. David has been a research assistant for multiple professors and judges, and served as a summer associate last year for Jones Day.

Before attending law school, David worked as the marketing director for the Alta Equipment Company in Wixom, Michigan. He received his undergraduate degree in English from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill and his masters in English from Pennsylvania State University. In his free time, David enjoys rock climbing, distance running, and traveling.

After graduation, David will join the Columbus office of the Jones Day law firm, and beginning in the summer of 2015, he will serve for a year as a federal judicial clerk in the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals for Judge Albert Diaz.

Congratulations, David!

Ms. Weber:

Thank you so much to the Board for this honor. This means the world to me. As stated earlier, I went to Ohio State for my undergraduate and graduate and truly "But for Ohio State". Ohio State has given me everything I have and for that I am eternally grateful.

Thank you so much to the College of Nursing, to Dean Melnyk, and my advisors, Dr. Steward and Dr. Harrison. I would not have made it this far without them, that is for sure. Thank you to my family and friends and my entire family at Ohio State for supporting me through this amazing educational journey.

Mr. Keaster:

I just wanted to say thank you. I actually finished medical school yesterday and I will graduate in early May. I want to thank you all for this award. It represents to me a capstone, not of what I have given to Ohio State and the community, but what you have given to me. Again, thank you very much.

Mr. Twombly:

Thank you so much, Stacie and thank you so much to the trustees. I really appreciate it. It is a real honor to be here with you today.

The last few years that I have spent here at the Moritz College of Law have been some of the best years of my life. That won't surprise you when I say that I moved down here from Michigan but I promise it is not just the contrast. The College of Law really has a wonderful educational culture. I think that comes partly from the students and partly from the faculty. Students are very supportive. I had heard horror stories of law schools being cut throat institutions when I was applying. Moritz is completely the opposite and I think partly that is mid-western values, but I think also it is the collegiality and professionalism that the faculty set as a model for us.

I have had so many wonderful opportunities at the Moritz College of Law and I briefly want to give you a sense of what some of those were. I got the chance to work with students in Columbus talking to LGBT high school students about the first amendment. I spent a semester visiting a fifth grade classroom at the Indianola K-8 school talking about dispute resolution techniques that students can apply to their own lives. I was trained as a tax preparer and was able to work with Franklin County residents and help them file their taxes. I was able to work with not one but two federal judges, including your own Judge Marbley. It is hard to say enough about what an amazing opportunity that is to step out of the classroom and see the law practiced at such a high level. I am so grateful to The Ohio State University and the Moritz College of Law for the educational opportunities that I have had.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

I want to say thank you to a couple of people in the room. One is Associate Dean Gary Jenkins who joined me today from the College of Law. In addition to everything else that he does at the College of Law, he is also the faculty advisor to the Ohio State Law Journal. I have gone to him many times over the last year to talk about difficult decisions I was facing. He has always been generous with his time and wise with his advice. Thank you to Dean Jenkins.

And most important, I wanted to say thank you to my wife, Anne Marie. I feel like I have been very busy over the past three years but she is an OBGYN resident at the Wexner Medical Center. By contrast, I felt like a complete slacker next to her. Through it all, she has been supportive, sympathetic, and most shockingly I think, she has been awake to talk to me. She just came off of a 24 hour shift this morning and here she is so thank you to Anne Marie.

I want to introduce our baby boy, Benjamin. He is going to be joining us for the picture here. He is five months old today and we are so proud to have him as a buckeye baby. Thank you all so much.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Okay. I now would like to call on President Alutto.

Oh, we have a change in the agenda. What is it?

Dr. Thompson:

We will pause for a moment for a few students to come into the room.

A Sphinx Member:

Sphinx Links! Stacie Seger, daughter of Ken and Janna Seger, is an Agricultural and Communication major and Agribusiness and Applied Economics minor student from Minster, Ohio. She is primarily involved in the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences where she serves as the President of the Agricultural Communicators of Tomorrow, Co-chair of the College Recognition Banquet, Secretary of CFAES Student Council, a member of Alpha Zeta Partners Fraternity, and a college ambassador. In addition to her college involvement, Stacie has served the undergraduate student government as a CFAES senator.

Stacie's passion for international development has led her to study abroad in Brazil, Ireland, and Ecuador. She is also employed by the Ohio Pork Producers Council. Last year, she was appointed to one of the highest honors an undergraduate student can reach as she was appointed the student representative on the Ohio State University Board of Trustees.

Stacie's dedication to The Ohio State University and her passion for the agricultural industry make her a faithful link into the 108th class of Sphinx.

Ms. Seger:

Sorry!

Dr. Thompson:

As a Sphinx tradition, Stacie did not know that was coming.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Schottenstein:

Stacie, congratulations! Just so everyone here knows, when we talk about observing proper rules of decorum that is an example of proper rules of decorum. Congratulations and I know that was a total surprise.

Okay, Dr. Alutto, your report please.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

President Alutto:

Thank you. Well despite the chill of early spring, we certainly enjoyed numerous bright spots this year and I am going to be sharing a few of those with you this morning. However, before I do, I want to acknowledge the contributions of some outgoing trustee members, whose terms end in May. I should say that there will be more of this as the program goes on but I get the first crack and I am going to take advantage of it.

I want to express my personal gratitude to Bob Schottenstein for his service as chairman of our Board. He led us through a time of uncertainty and transition with decisive and thoughtful leadership. His focus, passion, and sensitivity were invaluable throughout his membership on the Board and not just during his term as chair. During his term as chair, these characteristics provided the foundation for progress that exceeded all our expectations. Bob, remember those achievements and they will serve to strengthen Ohio State for many years to come, not just in the time that you have actually served on the Board. Thank you very much for the difference that you have made.

I also want to thank Alan Brass, who is sitting here on my right, for his time on the Board. Particularly, in helping to ensure that we were on firm footing before we began our medical expansion, which I will remind everyone, is the largest project of its kind in university history. Alan, I have an incredibly high regard for the incisive business and health care acumen you brought to this particular project and so many others in the time that you have been on the board. You made certain that we understood the role the medical center plays in the future of this university and your significant contributions to the successful opening of our medical center this fall cannot be overstated. Thank you so much, Alan, for your passion and clarity of mind, and as an aside, thank you for your grandson who will be joining Fisher College this fall.

Finally, of course, I want to acknowledge the contributions of our student trustee Ben Reinke. On every occasion, Ben has demonstrated maturity and intellect beyond his years, and we are very grateful for his insights. Ben of course will continue his coursework at Ohio State and plans to graduate next spring with a doctorate in Nuclear Engineering. Ben, we wish you the best of luck, even though we may never understand exactly what is meant by cryogenic irradiation or gamma radiation damage experiments, it just sounds dangerous, but especially, since you will have the tendency to express that in French, which will make it even more complex. Nevertheless, we have no doubt that you will continue to make this university very proud and as a bit of an inside joke, the only request I have is be on time for graduation.

Would you all now please join me in giving them all a round of applause?

And now it is my privilege to share a few recent highlights with you.

Ann Hamilton, an internationally recognized artist and a Distinguished University Professor at Ohio State, will be one of nine individuals inducted into the American Academy of Arts and Letters. This is considered the highest recognition of artistic merit in the United States. With this honor, Professor Hamilton joins a 250-member group that includes composer Philip Glass, artist Maya Lin and author Toni Morrison.

To top off the week, Ann was also commissioned to create the largest public art project in Seattle, Washington's history. We are certainly very proud of Ann and how she represents this university on such a national stage.

Last week, more than 600 of our brightest and most creative undergraduate students participated in the annual Denman Undergraduate Research Forum. This showcases the immense breadth of undergraduate research and scholarship at Ohio State. This is the 19th year of this event, made possible by corporate partners and private friends and donors, including the event's namesakes, Rick and Marte Denman.

The Denman projects propose solutions to problems from disease and discrimination to poverty and food production. This student research forum is one of the largest events of its kind and truly is a visual representation of the remarkable benefits of a major research university. I am very proud of these student scholars and I am grateful to the many faculty and staff advisors who share their guidance and expertise with these students each and every year.

Now while March Madness has ended for Ohio State, I want to point out the tremendous academic success of our student athletes. I am very proud to report that 73 of our Winter Student Athletes were named to their respective Academic All-Big Ten teams, including graduating senior Aaron Craft. And if you haven't seen it, I really encourage you to look for the video of Aaron reciting 63 numerals of "pi" that appears on Ohio State's YouTube page. Just in case, we asked the math department to check on his math, and to no surprise, he was right.

And believe it or not, Ohio State is still going strong in another March Madness bracket. As of this past Monday, two Ohio State college students with startups had advanced to the Elite Eight of "America's Coolest College Startups" in Inc. magazine's annual competition. Pufferfish Software, a mobile app maker for autistic children, was founded by freshman business major Megan Holstein, and Buckeyes Keith Shields and Joshua Tucker co-founded Applits, a platform for creating mobile apps. We certainly wish these students the best of luck with their entrepreneurial endeavors and believe they represent the spirit we see throughout our student body.

While we may have competed with the school up North in the Big Ten basketball tournament, Ohio State and the University of Michigan have teamed together to establish a manufacturing research institute that is expected to create 10,000 new jobs in the Midwest in the next five years.

The American Lightweight Materials Manufacturing Innovation Institute will help develop advanced lightweight materials and technology for use in everything from new hulls for Navy ships to lighter and safer automobiles that are more energy efficient.

I am also proud of the recognition that our university continues to garner for the services and resources we offer to military and veteran students. I mentioned at our last meeting that Ohio State was named a "University Partner" by the Tillman Military Program, which will create scholarships for some of our students. But more recently, Military Times listed Fisher College of Business number 2 in the nation in its "Best for Vets: Business School" rankings for 2014.

Ohio State has also been recognized for its many international initiatives. Just this last month, the university was selected to receive the Senator Paul Simon Award. This award recognizes institutions for overall excellence in internationalization and an important component of our international strategy is the opening of gateway offices in key areas of the world, including as you all know, China, India and soon to be announced for Brazil. Those enable us to forge significant new partnerships with universities, businesses, and alumni.

I firmly believe that's our responsibility to prepare our students to be internationally engaged citizens. We have made significant strides in our global strategies accomplishing this, such as increasing our international student population, enhancing study abroad opportunities, creating international dual degree programs, and a variety of other efforts.

Before closing, I want to mention two events that are happening later today. They represent the rich array of intellectual and cultural events that can be found on our campus quite literally any day of the year.

This afternoon we welcome the first speaker in the Provost's newly established Discovery Themes Lecturer Program. Jeffrey Sachs, director of The Earth Institute and New York Times best-selling author, will address the challenges of sustainable growth on our planet, followed by a panel discussion of our faculty members. This lecture also is part of the spring COMPAS Conference, which is exploring critical policy issues of private versus public domains.

Also, beginning tonight, The Royal Shakespeare Company will be presenting The Taming of the Shrew for younger audiences at our Drake Performance Center. This truly is a wonderful introduction to Shakespeare for young children in Ohio, and we are once again very proud of our partnership with this world-renowned theatre group.

Finally, I want to acknowledge that we continue to work closely with Columbus Public Health to monitor a mumps outbreak on our Columbus campus and also in our community. We take this very seriously and I am grateful to the many medical personnel and staff members who are working to both contain the illness and also to treat those affected.

Working together, the individuals from all over our campuses make this a great university. The Ohio State University is big, it is complex, and, as everyone knows, things do not always go as planned. But I have seen firsthand, that this is a university brimming with creativity, passion, intellect, compassion for each other, good will, and bold spirit. As always, it is an absolute privilege to be a part of such a remarkable university and I thank you all for the opportunity.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. That is my report.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Thank you. Any questions for President Alutto?

I think at this time, Dr. Gabbe will come forward for a presentation on the Wexner Medical Center. While he is coming forward, I want to note that yesterday was a special day in the history of our College of Medicine. It is not often you turn 100 years old and yesterday was the 100 year anniversary of the creation of the College of Medicine. It has been a remarkable run. I know that we are looking forward to the future just as much as we want to celebrate the past. Dr. Gabbe, congratulations on that milestone and we are very pleased to hear your report.

THE WEXNER MEDICAL CENTER: A 10-YEAR REVIEW

Presentation

Dr. Gabbe:

Thank you so much and I really appreciate the opportunity to join with you in looking back on a decade of improving people's lives. As we go through this decade, we will have an opportunity to recognize the significant contributions that our chair, Mr. Schottenstein, and Mr. Alan Brass, who chaired our Medical Affairs Committee, have made to the many accomplishments that we are going to see.

The challenge for us was to figure out which ones we could put on the timeline because there were so many firsts. If you look to your left, at 2005, you will note that this is the year that Mr. Schottenstein joined the OSU Board of Trustees. That year we had a first when Dr. Michael Caligiuri, who leads our comprehensive cancer center and the James, described the characteristics of human natural killer cell development, which is so important in immune response, and in fighting cancer.

The following year, Mr. Brass joined the OSU Board of Trustees, and that year, Carlo Croce was the first to characterize the importance of microRNA in cancer. Carlo has received many national and international awards for his significant work.

In 2008, we were among a handful of academic medical centers to receive the NIH's funding for a Center for Clinical and Translational Science. Dr. Becky Jackson leads that effort. That grant was for $34 million over five years and in 2013, it was renewed for more than $25 million.

In 2009, for the first time, our medical center was named to the U.S. News and World Report Honor Roll. This is the best of the very best of hospitals in the United States. In fact, for 21 years, US News has named us one of America's best hospitals and more recently, the best in Columbus. You can also see that in 2009, Pelotonia started. It has gone on now for five years and has raised almost $62 million, and $19 million just last year, to support cancer research.

In 2010, I am sure you will all remember a very warm day when we broke ground for our new James Cancer Hospital. That following year, another first, when Dr. Bill Abraham was the first to lead a study of a sensitive sensor that could be placed within the heart to predict the onset of heart failure, avoiding hospitalizations and avoiding readmissions for heart patients.

In 2011, we had our "big bang," in other words we fully integrated our health information system, our electronic medical record. Now throughout our system, whether you are seen in the ED, in an outpatient clinic, in the hospital, all of your medical information is available electronically and we have been named one of the few hospitals in the country to receive a stage seven award from the Health Care Information and Management System Society for both our inpatient and outpatient electronic record.

In 2012, we changed the name of our medical center to become The Ohio State University's Wexner Medical Center recognizing the commitments and support of both Les and Abigail Wexner.

Now, moving ahead, we can see that in 2012, we topped out the new James and in that same year, we opened a state-of-the-art clinical skills education and assessment center, a simulation center, which is located in Prior Hall. In 2012, we also fully integrated our faculty group practice. This was led by Dr. Chris Ellison, who is CEO of the faculty group. Now, our entire faculty, nearly 900 clinicians, is working within the medical center and within the university. In 2012, we celebrated the opening of the Chloris Ingram Spirit of Women Park, another park of our medical center expansion program.

Another event that was very monumental for us in 2012 was the launching of our new medical school curriculum: the Lead, Serve, and Inspire curriculum. This is competency based and integrates the students into interdisciplinary teams. They learn side by side with students from the other health sciences schools and very differently from when I went to medical school, they see patients from virtually the first day of medical school on.

In 2013, we created our new Wexner Medical Center Board and that same year, Dr. Ali Rezaei and Dr. Doug Scharre to his right on the screen, conducted another first trial of deep brain stimulation to treat patients with early Alzheimer's disease and that trial continues to this time.

In 2013 also and many of you remember this, Dr. John Byrd published his significant study on the new cancer drug, Ibrutinib, which is highly effective in treating patients with chronic lymphocytic leukemia.

In 2014, and you see a picture of Dr. Scharre above the date, the SAGE test was first published. This is a self-administered gerocognitive exam to detect early cognitive dysfunction. This test has been downloaded from our OSU Wexner Medical Center website more than 800,000 times and its interest in using this test is to determine mental function among aging patients.

Later this year, we anticipate the opening of the new James Cancer Hospital, Solove Research Institute and Critical Care Center. We will celebrate the opening early in November and we will move patients into the new hospital in mid-December.

Let's look at some specific data over the past decade, first in patient care. The risk adjusted mortality index, or the observed to expected mortality, tells you how likely a patient is to survive when they come to your hospital. If the ratio were one, you would say the patients who are expected to pass away as a result of their illness, is a one. It is what we expected. Well, in 2003, our observed to expected mortality was 0.87. Meaning that about 13% of patients who came to us survived when they wouldn't have expected to do so. By 2013, that number was reduced to 0.68 so 32% of patients who would have otherwise been expected to pass away, survived to go home to their family and friends. That ratio now is well below 0.6 and is one of the best in the country.

You can see how our outpatient visits have nearly doubled in the past decade. In the upper right is a picture of the Eye and Ear Institute where we have the surgical ambulatory facility. Over the last decade, with the support of Mr. Brass and Mr. Schottenstein, we have launched three new care points in Lewis Center, Gahanna, and on the east side, our new Eye and Ear Institute, and our new Stefanie Spielman Breast Center. We have also developed collaborations with Giant Eagle and Kroger for easy access clinics and this has led to significant growth in our out-patient care.

Finally, if we look at the inpatient admissions and observation numbers, this is both patients who were admitted and patients who were in our hospital in a hospital bed for observation, you can see the significant growth by almost 30,000 patients over the past decade.

You see in the middle of the slide, the demolition of Means Hall. Means, by the way, was the first Dean of our College of Medicine and he was appointed on April 3, 1914. That building was originally built in 1951 as Ohio's Tuberculosis Hospital. We hope that one day the new James, which you see to the right, will no longer be needed as a cancer hospital just as we no longer needed Means Hall for a tuberculosis hospital.

What about research? Well over the decade, you can see that our total research funding rose from $108 to $166 million and we opened a new research facility. In the lower right, you see the Biomedical Research Tower and by the way, three floors of that building that had been shelled were built out as part of our Medical Center Expansion. Our NIH funding rose over the decade from $72 to $96 million.

One of the most important educational programs we have in our College of Medicine is our MD/PhD program. These are the students who both receive an MD and a PhD degree over seven to eight years of study. These are the individuals who we look forward to being the true leaders in biomedical research. In 2003, we had 32 students in that program. In 2011, we became one of less than 30 medical schools in the country to have a NIH funded medical scientist training program to support these students. Now, we are enrolling 10 students a year in the MD/PhD program and the number is up to 52 students, thanks to that funding from the NIH.

What about education? I have mentioned to you the new Lead, Serve, and Inspire curriculum. Folks are coming from around the country to study how we have done this transition and what this curriculum brings to our students. Just last week, the Liaison Committee for Medical Education, which accredits all medical schools in the country, visited us for their accreditation site visit. They praised two features of this new curriculum: one, the career counseling that is provided for our students and second, the portfolio system that is used to monitor the competencies of our students.

You can see back in 2003, the grade point average of our entering medical students was 3.63. That is about the national average but now in 2013, it is 3.70. I might point out that back in 2003, we had 3,300 applications to our medical school. Today, that number is 5,500. That means that about one out of every eight students applying to medical school in this country applies to Ohio State.

If you look at the MCAT scores, that is the Medical College Admissions Test, which is very important in predicting the success of the student, in 2003 the total score was 31. That is a little above the national average for entering medical students. Today it is 34 which is comparable to the best medical schools in the country. We are also proud that over the last decade, we have become one of the most diverse medical schools in the country. Our student body has grown from 12% underrepresented students in medicine to 20%.

What about the future? Our future is one of population management, partnerships, and working in healthcare teams to improve people's health and wellness. You can see in the lower left our partnership with the city of New Albany and Nationwide Children's Hospital in developing the new Philip Heit Center for Health in New Albany. This will open early next year and will focus on personalized health care, exercise and fitness, and community health.

In the upper right, you see an artist's rendering of Taylor Avenue with University Hospital East in the upper part of the picture. This characterizes our partnership with the City of Columbus and with the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority, to transform that neighborhood, improving its health and wellness. The university as you know has made a commitment early in this process of $10 million. Some of that funding was used and enabled us to apply for a pilot grant and we received that grant of $300,000. That enabled us to submit a larger grant to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for a Choice Neighborhood initiative. Forty four cities submitted a grant to that funding agency and out of the 44, six cities were chosen with Columbus being one of them. They made their site visit last week and we are cautiously optimistic that we will be selected for this $30 million award.

Another partnership that has occurred over the last few years has been our partnership with Mount Carmel Health. There we have been able to work together to improve the community's access to psychiatric, rehabilitation, neuroscience services, and improve our collaborative educational activities.

In the future, we see more activities in our technology transfer and commercialization. In the upper left, you see my good friend Dr. Pravin Kaumaya. I hired Pravin to join our OBGYN department about two decades ago and he has been working towards the development of an anti-cancer vaccine. That is now a reality and it has just been licensed to MedVax Technologies Inc. It is a very exciting development to all of us.

In the middle of that slide, you see the OSU MyChart. This is part of our integrated health information system. It allows our patients to access their chart, communicate with their doctor, their nurse, their healthcare team, at any time. We now have nearly 90,000 of our patients using MyChart. Our future, as we have emphasized in the lower right, is the new James Cancer Hospital, Solove Research Institute, and Critical Care Center.

As we celebrate what has happened over the past decade, it is so important that we recognize the roles that Bobby and Alan have played, the time they have given, their support, their wisdom, and insight. None of this could have been accomplished without their advice and their help. None of this would have been accomplished without the guidance of the Board of Trustees and for that, we are all very grateful.

Thank you very much.

Mr. Schottenstein:

I will say that at least in the case of Mr. Brass, his commitment to not just this Board but to all things related to the Medical Center, has been extremely important. I appreciate being included but I sort of watched. Steve, that was a great report. Are there any questions from any members of the Board concerning the report?

Mr. Brass:

Steve has handed out accolade after accolade the last couple of days, but to Steve and Steve's team, let me tell you, they have worked very hard to make a decade of things happen. Steve, your leadership and that of your team around you and of our faculty, is well known as it relates to these accomplishments so to you, congratulations very much.

Dr. Gabbe:

I appreciate it. Thank you.

Dr. Cloyd:

Let me make one other point. There is an element that, for me, is missing, that is an accomplishment here. If we start thinking back to 2006-2007 and think of a decade, there was frankly not as good of a community relationship between our academic medical center and Columbus. Those familiar know that there was a lot of angst, there were a lot of things going back and forth, and there was a lot of distrust. That has essentially gone away. Now I think the accomplishments of what you and what the people associated with our entire academic medical center have been able to bring, we now have a wonderful embracing relationship with the community, certainly highlighted with what we are doing out east, but beyond that with the broader community. I think that is a very important advance that we have had and I thank you for that.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Mr. Schottenstein:

Gil, I really appreciate you saying that. We had a Board dinner last night and I think that that was recognized as well. We look at the last 10 years and it is a lot. None of it could have happened without you, Steve, and your leadership. I feel like we are just getting started. It is really exciting to see, not just where we are, but what we have the opportunity to do. We have made tremendous progress and I know we will continue to. Just tremendous appreciation and thanks to you and everyone that has helped make this happen.

I would like you to stay in that seat if you wouldn't mind because we are going to start on the committee reports and the first committee report is the Wexner Medical Center Board. In the absence of Trustee Michael Gasser, who is the lead trustee on the Wexner Medical Center Board, I have been asked to give the update but I would appreciate it if you would stay there as well Steve because you may want to elaborate on what I have to say.

The board met on Wednesday April 2nd, with the exception of Mr. Gasser who is traveling out of the country, all trustees were present. First, we heard an update from Dr. Gabbe on a whole variety of important metrics that relate to quality, rankings, and reputation. The first was that presently, the College of Medicine, which as I mentioned earlier just turned 100, was recently ranked 34th by the U.S. News and World Report rankings, up from 38th the previous year. There is tremendous compression between the colleges that are ranked in that sort of 15 to 40 group. Just the slightest change in even the smallest of numbers can affect a movement one way or the other. One of the reasons that we did move up certainly was because of our increased NIH funding, as well as the increase in the incoming students' grade point averages.

You also mentioned, and you referred to it here just a few moments ago in talking about the last ten years, that we had a site visit from the Liaison Committee on Medical Education. I think they just left here two weeks ago and that was unusually successful. I think it exceeded our expectations. We were counting on a positive outcome, but you may want to comment on it. I think it was even more positive than we had anticipated.

Dr. Gabbe:

Thank you. I was on this group for six years and chaired it for three. It accredits all the American medical schools as well as the Canadian schools. Usually they come and visit and look at you up and down, backwards, forwards, sideways. It is about an 18 month process to get you ready for this visit. You always expect them to find a few problems, areas of what they would call non-compliance. They praised us in several areas. They want us to monitor more closely a few areas. They only found one concern and that is that they would like our faculty to have a more open opportunity to join committees that oversee our medical education activities.

It was pretty amazing to be honest with you and probably the best I have ever seen in my time as a member of that group.

Mr. Schottenstein:

The members of the Medical Center Board acknowledge that as well. You had mentioned, and I hope I pronounce his name right, Dr. Pravin Kaumaya and the tremendous work that he has done. We recently learned, as a result of his research, about the new licensing agreement. We are hoping it is as successful as we expect it to be with Medvax Technologies relating to the anti-cancer vaccine that he developed. I don't know if you want to add anything on that. I do want to mention that I think a lot of the money that supported his research was a direct result of Pelotonia. When we talk about how much Pelotonia has meant, the $19 million last year, five years now, over $60 million, so many sitting around this table, Linda and others have been so passionate in their support for Pelotonia. This is yet an example of what the money has done. You may want to add to that.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Dr. Gabbe:

That is exactly right and his vaccine focuses on the HER2 marker, which is seen in so many cancers including breast cancer. As Dr. Caligiuri pointed out at our meeting, you can be treated with Herceptin if you have the appropriate marker, the HER2 marker for breast cancer, and that treatment is hundreds of thousands of dollars a year whereas the vaccine would be a relatively inexpensive alternative if it works out as we hope it will.

Mr. Schottenstein:

The Board then heard a comprehensive review of not just the key initiatives of the medical center, but also how we are doing with our financial scorecard. We were very satisfied with that report. The arrows are trending where they are expecting to be. We did have an interesting comment about our patient satisfaction scores. Our goal is to achieve a 100% patient satisfaction. That is never going to be possible but we continue to strive to be in the upper 90th percentile of all medical centers who receive patient satisfaction.

Jay Kasey provided an update on the new cancer hospital, which as President Alutto mentioned, is the biggest construction project, capital project frankly, in the history of the university and one of the biggest in the history of the state of Ohio. The continued good news is that that project remains on time and on budget; and also very good news is that in terms of the EDGE contracts, which stands for Encouraging Diversity Growth and Equity in the firms that we do business with, we are exceeding the percentages that we had hoped to achieve, 28.8%, nearly 29% of all of the contractors that have, contributed work towards this project would qualify as EDGE contractors. We were very happy to hear that.

I don't know if you wanted to add anything else to what I have said, Steve.

Dr. Gabbe:

Just to note that of the contracts for the new James, nearly 87% are with Ohio firms. The winter weather slowed our construction of the Phyllis Jones Legacy Park a little bit. That will be a new oval in front of the new hospital but we should be back on track. We have also already opened the emergency medicine services off of 12th. As you know in the past, patients and emergency vehicles coming in had to come in the same way. Now, the emergency vehicles come in the back right into the ED. That has really helped us a lot.

Mr. Schottenstein:

There were other trustees who attended the meeting. I don't know if anyone has any questions or things to add about the Medical Center Board meeting. Janet?

Dr. Reid:

It is not about the Board meeting per se, but this is just an additional thank you to you. Health care as we all know, is crazy. That is the simplest way to put it. There are so many changes happening but part of the wave of those changes is predicated on the assumption that illness needs to be treated, but the prevention of illness needs to be addressed. Looking at the prevention of illness with regard to a whole community is really important. There is much pride in Ohio State and with you and the Medical Center and looking outward to how it is that we can be healthier as a community and healthier as individuals. The establishment of the electronic medical records is part of the whole thing. I wanted to thank you for that.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Schottenstein:

Steve, thanks.

Next committee, Advancement. Linda?

Mrs. Kass:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. We had a robust meeting yesterday morning in Advancement. We have eight items on the consent agenda from the Advancement Committee. The University Foundation Report, which is item 11, along with the naming or renaming of seven spaces. All are being recommended for approval.

I will begin with the University Foundation Report. Overall, we are doing extremely well, trending to surpass last year's fundraising activity and cash receipts, and are on pace for this year to be one of the top fundraising years on record. In terms of totally fundraising progress, that is our gifts and pledges, as of February 28th, we have raised $247,553 million of our $390 million annual goal. This number is about 10.5% from the same time last year and we continue to be on track to reach our $390 million goal.

Our philanthropic receipts, which are the cash numbers we use to measure ourselves against our peers, are at $218 million, tracking nearly 2.5% ahead of time elapsed as we approach our $316 million goal. This is 8% higher than where we were last year. We also reviewed the progress of our campaign activity which continues to track ahead of a linear schedule. It is at $1.82 billion toward our $2.5 billion goal and tracking a little over 4% over the time elapsed.

We looked at how each unit is tracking in the campaign and 12 units are ahead of pace, 15 are behind, and what is noteworthy here, a special note perhaps, is that Mike Eicher and Provost Steinmetz hosted a four hour round table with all Deans on March 25th around the whole process of fundraising. They, particularly Mike Eicher, will be continuing to offer guidance to the units. I really applaud his efforts in this area.

We have spoken in the past reports about the Foundation Board's plans to restructure itself; to redefine that Board for success. There have been many individual meetings and personal calls with all 45 directors and overall, they support the changes and will vote on the final restructuring recommendations after a full presentation at their April 25th meeting. We expect an updated report about this at our June Advancement Committee meeting.

Submitted for approval with this University Foundation Report is the establishment or revision of endowments totaling over $15.3 million. This includes five chairs, two professorships, 21 scholarships, six program support funds, one research fund, two named funds, three unrestricted funds, three revisions, and one closure.

In addition, on the consent agenda there are four namings and three renamings fully vetted by the gift acceptance committee. In the interest of time, please refer to the full listing of consent agenda items 12 through 18.

We had several items on our agenda for discussion, which are very interesting. The first was an Alumni Association Report given by the Chair of the Board of the Alumni Association, Christopher Ito. Chris provided an overview of the Alumni Board along with its current initiatives. The Alumni Board is reviewing the Alumni Association's strategic plan as the alumni group has shifted its focus onto deeper engagement of its membership. This plan, along with their scorecard, is aligned with the overall

Advancement Strategic Plan and scorecard. The final draft is expected to be approved at the Alumni Association's Board meeting in May. Several other Alumni initiatives were discussed that I will briefly review now.

First, annual giving. We had the first review of the annual giving program at our January Advancement Committee Meeting. As you know, this program has transitioned from the Foundation Board to the Alumni Association. Yesterday we learned that annual giving is having positive developments in engagement as a result of the switch from the association's membership model to a donor model. An enhanced online giving platform is now being implemented that is easier to use and more transparent. They also plan to hire a digital giving strategist to increase online donations as well as a stewardship manager to cultivate annual givers so that they will become major donors down the road.

Additional initiatives of the Alumni Association were discussed. Since its start 18 months ago, the Alumni Office of Career Management has had 110,000 contact points through one-on-one advising, fairs, webinars, and the job board, and is also reaching out to colleges to offer resources and assistance.

The new Office of Volunteer Management is now under development and will eventually monitor volunteer opportunities available at Ohio State. They are currently in the process of hiring a director.

Finally, the Alumni Association is exploring possibilities in digital strategy with the help of University Communications. At its next meeting, the Alumni Association Board will consider next steps in the cost benefit of a one-stop customer-centric website for alumni. To oversee all of these initiatives as well as the club and society activities, the board plans to hire an AVP of Engagement Strategies.

We then had an update on the Advancement scorecard which continues to be an evolving tool for us with the Advancement team continuing to fine tune our metrics particularly as they relate to measures around awareness and engagement. As I mentioned earlier, our fiscal year measures and campaign progress are overall on track to meet our fundraising goals.

Here are brief highlights of our other metrics. There are plans to go live with a longitudinal alumni study this summer. This will be a large engaged group of alumni to regularly give us feedback. Chris Ito called it an inside community that will help Advancement make data driven decisions and respond to change over time.

For events, we are using on our scorecard something called a net promoter score (NPS) which measures customer loyalty. Our current NPS of 80.41 means, we were told, that we have about 80% promoters who are likely to recommend events to other buckeyes and this really was our baseline build: 20 alumni events with 1,640 attendees. We are building a baseline so we can continue to measure. That is why our scorecard is an evolving journey.

We are currently establishing baselines in the area of media and marketing. This includes a social media measure and key media quality metrics. We plan to take a deeper dive to explore these areas at our next meeting. The Committee is just really beginning to understand the baseline numbers that quantify, for example, the level of positive media that Ohio State is generating across traditional media outlets.

Finally, Mike Eicher introduced the most recent addition to his Advancement team, David Ripple. We have talked to you about two other key members of his team who arrived here last summer: Patty Hill-Callahan, heading development for health and medical, and Sarah Rubin, VP of Principal Gifts. With the addition of David Ripple as the new Vice President for Development after a yearlong search, Mike's Advancement Senior Leadership team is complete. David joins us from Wayne State University where he was President of their Foundation and Vice President of Development and Alumni Affairs. David spoke to us for a few minutes and shared some interesting coincidences. First that Michael Drake will be this year's commencement speaker at Wayne State, which was quite a coincidence, and then he shared his Ohio ties with us; the fact that his dad marched in the Best Damn Band in the Land. David has some ties to us and a lot of passion. He recalled that throughout his 20 years in the development profession, his dream job was to work at Ohio State so this is a destination for him.

That completes my report, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Schottenstein:

That was a great report. Before we take questions, I just want to make a comment.

I was thinking back to that timeline you did, Dr. Gabbe, and 10 years ago, Advancement was maybe an idea but there was really no one paying attention to it in any kind of productive way here at Ohio State. At Board meetings like this, we would review whatever happened and that didn't necessarily focus on how we might be able to change the trajectory of what was happening, let alone decide what we wanted to have happen. I think that this is an example of an area where leadership, Linda and Gil Cloyd and certainly a whole host of others now led by Mike Eicher, we are making enormous progress. We have very clear goals. This is no different from football. We want to be number one, not number two and not number 15, but number one. That is not going to happen overnight but we are going to make that happen. I think this is really important. It is not just because we want to pound our chests. We know that with this money coming in, we can just do so much more to fuel the student initiatives, provide additional scholarships, and just help the academy in the ways in which it is needed. I wanted to point that out.

Any other comments from any of the trustees on Linda's report? Yes, Ben.

Mr. Reinke:

I have beat the drum on this a little bit in the past. I just kind of want to reiterate that for many reasons, the approach that the Alumni Association and Advancement is taking to a digital strategy is extremely important. As of right now, we are still finding interesting ways to engage our alumni. As we try to build out the engagement strategy and offer personalized and customized engagements for our alumni, it becomes more and more relevant for young alumni, as we grow older, to stay in touch with the university.

There are many things that take place on campus every day that are incredible; opportunities for alumni to engage in those through viewing digitally, through taking part in conversations online, or learning about events so that they can attend, is extremely important. I think there has been a lot of progress already through our communications team and then also through the Alumni Association and new and interesting ways to interface digitally.

The thing that I would lead with is that whatever we do, I think we need to do it right. We think about often what the physical plan and the entrance to the university looks like. For many reasons, in our generation as we get older, that matters a lot but it also matters what the first front page is that we view when we interact digitally with the university. It doesn't mean that everything we do is going to be digital but it means that that is a way that the university is judged and perceived but also a way for people to find what they are looking for at Ohio State. This is a big place so it is important that we get it right.

I fully support what is going on there.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Schottenstein:

Others? Okay, next the Audit and Compliance Committee, Judge Marbley, Chair.

Judge Marbley:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Audit and Compliance Committee met yesterday. We began with a presentation from Ms. Christa Dewire who is from Pricewaterhouse Coopers (PwC), the University's external auditors. Ms. Dewire and Mr. Gary Ryan will be our new contact points at PwC as Mr. Rick Stover, who was formally our contact, is leaving PwC to begin a teaching career at the University of Dayton.

Ms. Dewire reviewed with the Committee the Fiscal Year 2014 Audit Plan for the university. PwC will continue to approach the audit through the use of a top-down, risk-based approach to ensure that the audit strategy is executed in an effective and efficient manner. She noted that there are no significant changes in the deliverables or the scope of the audit, which will be conducted in accordance with Generally Accepted Auditing Standards (GAAS) and Government Auditing Standards (GAS).

Further, Ms. Dewire reviewed with the committee areas of significant risk for the university, which are consistent with those identified in the prior year, the general areas of audit focus, and new matters for fiscal year 2014, including the impact of the university's upgrades to its PeopleSoft system and a new GASB (Governmental Accounting Standards Board) pronouncement.

The committee also received a report from Mr. Gates Garrity-Rokous, the university's Vice President and Chief Compliance Officer. He began his report with an update on the university's key compliance processes and noted that the office is in the process of updating its annual compliance plan.

He then discussed with the committee recent developments at the national level regarding the enforcement of Title IX, information security, and the review of policies regarding minors on campuses. As to information security, he noted that due to an increase in the size and number of data breaches at the national level, the safety of personal information has become a priority for the FBI and the DOJ and a working group within the state of Ohio has been formed to examine this issue at the state level.

Additionally, as compliance functions are becoming more common at universities, Mr. Garrity-Rokous provided the committee with benchmark data that demonstrated that the university is leading the way over other large public universities in the development and implementation of a centralized compliance function. We indeed are ahead of the curve for the most part in this area.

Finally, we heard from Provost Steinmetz, who presented a resolution for the approval of a new affiliated entity, OSU Brazil Gateway, which appears on the consent agenda as item number 10. Dr. Steinmetz reviewed with the committee the plans for the establishment of the Gateway in São Paulo, Brazil as the university's third Gateway, following India and China.

The gateway in Brazil will serve to enhance the internationalization of the university's teaching, research, and service missions, and will connect faculty, staff, students, and businesses at Ohio State and in the Columbus area with institutions in Brazil. The university has been strategically engaged in Brazil for almost 50 years, including a research and teaching partnership with the University of São Paulo's Luiz de Queiroz, College of Agriculture, through which the university maintains over 20 active faculty collaborations and a number of student mobility programs. Through another partnership, the university has also obtained free office space in one of the prime locales of São Paulo to operate the Brazil office.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

The development of the Brazil Gateway and the current opportunities within the country aligns with the university's discovery themes. Funding will be provided for the Brazil Gateway by the Office of Academic Affairs through 2016, with the expectation that the Gateway will look to a blended funding model after 2016. Global Gateways has also developed goals and financial metrics for the next three years and will be establishing benchmarks for the Brazil Gateway in the coming year.

We voted to recommend the establishment of this gateway office and then recessed into executive session.

Mr. Chairman, that concludes my report.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Thank you, any questions for Judge Marbley. Next, Academic Affairs and Student Life Committee, chaired by Jeff Wadsworth.

Dr. Wadsworth:

We had the usual fairly routine matters that will appear on the consent agenda and I won't go through the details. They are there to be read and we also discussed the gateway. I am sure several committees did.

The primary purpose of the meeting was to review our research and development standing. Research development is a big deal for a world class university and I am going to finish by saying a bunch of positive things. First, I want to emphasize that we really have to examine how good we are in order to know where to get to. R&D funding at the moment in this country is very challenging. Federal funding is down, state funding is down, and industry funding is spotty, subject to local economic variation. It is a very challenging environment in which to grow.

Having said that, the OSU R&D funding for the past six or so years is flat, having a little bit of a spurt in 2003 and 2004. Because it has been flat, and others have managed to inch up, our ranking in R&D has actually dropped quite significantly, from about 11 to about 19, that is a concern.

Some of the public universities are growing faster than we are and there are two right on our heels in the ranking of public universities that had pretty good growth. Their compounded annual growth rate was quite a bit better. We see a lot of competition and as we know, those rankings tend to feed into awards and other judgments, so we are looking hard at that.

State funding is actually quite good at Ohio State but it has decreased. It has decreased dramatically at other schools around the country. Some of them have just been zeroed out. Although ours has come down, it is still a good proportion of our total R&D funding compared to other states.

Industry is quite good. At Ohio State, we have a pretty good income, but half of it is for clinical trials so really when we see the numbers, only half of it is the sort of work that you might capture intellectual property and longer term benefits from. In industry research, for example, we rank third amongst universities. When we get into NIH and the physical sciences, we are much worse, we are 40th. We need to really figure this out and we have some tools coming up.

Another measure is how much research per faculty. This is where I want to bring in the Foundation. There are different ways to divide that number: you could do it by research PI or by faculty FTE. If you keep apples and apples together, by research per faculty, we are about 323,000, ranking 11th in public universities. The top schools, the University of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin, have very powerful foundations and have had for a very long time and that has fed the research enterprise. When we come back, Linda, to your comments about growth and all the work that Gil has done and everyone else, that foundation piece really is a differentiator when we study this data and ask why have some people been able to grow and others not. I want to emphasize that.

Here is another tricky one. The number of national academicians we have here is relatively low; members of the National Academy of Science, Engineering, and Institute of Medicine. If you add all that up, and again the numbers may be slightly off, but there is a number like 30 here where as at Harvard, there are 350 and Stanford is 300. We have been working on how to get people into the academy because when somebody in an academy puts a grant into NIH or NSF, it tends to get an automatic better look. There is a chicken/egg problem here. Once you get to spiral up, the more academicians you get in, the more likely you are to get money, the more you win money, the more people want to join, and the whole thing spirals up on itself. That is why we are placing a lot of emphasis on how to get this engine up faster.

Okay, now some very good news. We have done well on major research awards and Carol Whitacre was able to give us some very good examples. The largest one, $46 million, is in the Department of Education. There are three in the mid-20s in NIH funding and several are from NSF that are pretty good size. Our total research funding, if it is about $850 million, our competitors at the top end are at about twice that. That is hard to get to with $100 thousand wins so how would you go after these big centers in the tens of millions starts to become an interesting challenge to take on. We have been successful with some wonderful wins in this: the Clinical Translational Science Award, the Comprehensive Care Center Core Grant, and others. The university has been focused on this. There have been some recent successes with, as mentioned earlier, the American Lightweight Materials Manufacturing Innovation Institute, the university transportation center, and the health resources and service administration grant, which helped build out the Wexner Medical Center. Two of those three grants started to use a very deliberate proposal process that is often uncomfortable for the university because it starts to get into how you think about sales, how do you think about marketing, how do you get ahead of RFPs, how do you start to influence them. This is what business does all the time. Successful universities are thinking this way. OSU is proposing to build a proposal center, which we are happy to help with, where this kind of thinking about getting ahead of the major awards, understanding who is going to be giving them out, getting teams together, and working collaboratively to put big proposals together, is different than putting PI proposals together. You need institutional backing and institutional support and that is well underway.

As I said, we have very strong industry support in many respects and that again can be built upon and that as a focus.

I think we are all hanging a lot of hope on the Discovery Themes because this is an injection of major money. It allows us the opportunity to go out and hire teams of faculty in very concentrated areas that we believe will help society and is the kind of major impact that a great university like this needs to have. Food production and security, energy and environment, health and wellness, these are big topics but they are topics that are going to be enduring. We are making strategic hires and major investments. I think that is just the right thing to do to try to kick start another era of growth in an increasingly competitive world.

There was a very interesting economic study done by the Office of Research on how the research executed at Ohio State benefits every county in Ohio as well as across the country. It is this kind of data that can be used with state officials to demonstrate the power of the economic impact of the university and why that should continue to be a focus of investment by the state. It is not just about handing money over. We have nice little maps showing what the impact is per capita in the state and elsewhere. That is a good marketing tool to encourage our state to continue to see that this is a very good place to invest.

Finally, there are the international gateways which serve to, in very interesting ways, have our students go there and see the United States through a lens from another country as well as recruit students from other countries to here, as well as develop long term partnerships. At the end of days, places like China, India, and Brazil are accelerating their research and development budget and the United States is not. We publish a lot of data looking at where those transitions and crossovers take place. 2013 was the first time total Asian R&D support exceeded that of the US. In a couple of years, China on its own will exceed that of the US, so outreach to countries and partnering with them versus seeing them as a threat, I think, is the right answer. I think that is a good move in terms of the Discovery Themes, outreach, and a focus on winning big proposals.

Thank you. That is the end of my report.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Questions for Dr. Wadsworth? Yes, Gil?

Dr. Cloyd:

I had a chance to review the materials that they provided. I thought that was an excellent report. We have outstanding facilities here, there is outstanding support from the senior leadership of the university, there are a lot of capabilities, but we can do so much better here as Jeff outlined.

I think our challenge is going to be to keep a focus on those last three points that you talked about. Sometimes, our size and all the things that we can do cause us to lose focus. If we can really keep that attention to where we are going to focus, we are going to get bigger grants. How do we use this investment money that we have made available in the Discovery Themes and execute it very well in terms of the proposal and kind of the open innovation, the opportunities to collaborate externally.

I am confident that we can really make progress, but we won't achieve it if we can't keep that kind of focus on what we need to do. I think that is a wonderful start and that the proposed approach is just outstanding. I hope we can get it done in a quality way.

President Alutto:

Gil, I fully agree. I thought the report was a great report. I think things have happened over the last year with the strategic plan now that really keeps us very focused on exactly the kinds of outcomes we have described and allows us to make decisions to not do some things that we have been doing. I think you are right on target. I think that is going to be the pattern that will be seen at the Ohio State University. I also think it is the first time in a long time that we have had a bolus of resources that we could put to exactly this end and still at the same time provide support to areas that are competing in different arenas other than the one we are just talking about now. I think the positioning of this institution is perfect at this time, but it is clear there are things that we have to do differently.

Mr. Reinke:

I want to make a couple of points and then propose a question. One thing that is not immediately relevant is that a dollar amount in research per faculty member has a lot more to it than just that. It is not necessarily how much the faculty member spends on things but generally speaking those dollars go to two very important things. One is buying equipment if you are in the physical sciences or biological sciences and then it often also goes to hiring graduate students. Dollars per faculty member equals hired graduate students who can be paid to work here. Often for our faculty members, the graduate students do the lion's share of the work as they are trained to become professors.

There is a direct correlation between the size of the graduate student body engaged in research and the number of dollars available. That is really important to remember going forward because this affects not just our faculty or our reputation, but it also affects a large portion of the 13,000 graduate and professional students we have.

The next thing has to do with leveraging our breadth. I would guess that some of the reasons behind our winning of large scale awards to this point is that we have breadth amongst our faculty and expertise in many areas. As we try to leverage those things going forward, it is certainly a challenge. Faculty members are trained to look for RFPs within their area of expertise. That is what generally has been done for most of the past 100 years. When we look at how to do that, it is certainly a challenge but it is absolutely worthwhile. The question I would pose is, since faculty members work within the RFP world, and Dr. Wadsworth as you alluded to, if we can get in front of RFPs and look at what the strategy is of federal agencies, that can be extremely influential. The question that I pose is how that may correlate to our industry partnerships as well? We are doing well in that area but do you see an analogous situation there where we can be involved in the pitch to industries?

Dr. Wadsworth:

Yes I do, absolutely. I think there is no difference really in how we approach industry or federal grants in that regard. You need to understand where the investments are coming from, get to know them, invest in it. That is why it is so important to have a more central approach to big proposals. They are typically hard to do, especially since you correctly pointed out, that a lot of them do engage multidisciplinary teams; you don't tend to win $25 or $40 million proposals in a very narrow area.

Mr. Schottenstein:

We have six standing committees of this board in terms of how we function. There is a reason why there are six, and not five or ten. Each of them relates to an important, either operational or strategic pillar of what we are trying to get done. I sat in on the Academic Affairs Committee meeting yesterday. I think that the discussion in that meeting particularly as it related to research, which you highlighted Jeff so well, was just a wonderful example of good work. This is an area of a lot of opportunity but being realistic, open, and transparent of where we are good but also where we need to get a lot better, and drill down and really understand through benchmarking where we measure up quite well. I think a lot of us feel the same was about this as we feel about advancement or football and we don't want to be whatever you said we are ranked. That was a great report and I appreciate the leadership you have provided to academic affairs.

The fifth of our six committees, the existence of which I think is self-evident, is Finance, which is all about keeping track of what we do from a financial standpoint and what we can afford to do, chaired by Jerry Jurgensen.

Mr. Jurgensen:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. During our meeting yesterday, there were four items for discussion. A number of those involved the review of the financial scorecards and other scorecards we use to monitor what is going on across the university.

Everything, with respect to those scorecards, is on track. I think the point I want to make is that when you have scorecards like these, or we review our financial performance, almost always you find puts and takes. You have plusses offsetting minuses, the net of which for right now for us is that we are on track. However, I think what is worth watching is to make sure that the plusses aren't current accounting period items and the minuses are really emerging trends that are going to continue for some time in the future. That is where you have to be careful. It may look like the plusses are offsetting the minuses but they may not on a going forward basis so there were three kinds of issues like that in our review of the medical center scorecard and we had a good discussion about that.

That then flowed into a continuing conversation that we have had about the effectiveness and appropriateness of all of the scorecards; no matter if it is the advancement one that Linda talked about, or physical environment, the university general, the medical center, or our projects that we are working on. We need to remain constantly diligent about examining these to ensure that they are doing the right thing, as Ron Ratner pointed out yesterday in our meeting. The other thing we need to do while reviewing the scorecards is ensure that the things that the trustees are being shown have great symmetry to the things that the administration is using to actually run the place. There is no point in creating a series of things to show us if they are not exactly the things that management is using to run the business. That is one thing.

The second thing is that all of our scorecards tend to have a current period bias to them so they are about what is happening in this fiscal year, what is happening in this period. We talked a lot about how we really need a scorecard that looks at those items, how we are doing in the current budget, but we also need scorecards that track significant projects that have longer duration to them. What are the significant mileposts in pursuit of a strategic objective that is going to take us five or six years to reach and are we on track with respect to that. Our scorecards need some work in that regard.

We asked everyone who is a producer of these scorecards to try to come at us in an iterative way as they look to revise them. In other words, don't just go to your office, redesign it, and then hand it to us and say "here it is." I think we could short circuit that if there is an ongoing dialogue and no one disagreed with that, so that is what we are going to do. They are also going to come back and set our expectation relative to the amount of time it is going to take to redo all of these, which is a good thing as well.

With respect to the university financial scorecard, the medical center scorecard, the physical environment scorecard, and the construction project status report, I really don't have anything to call out that was off in a major way on any of those.

We had six items on the consent agenda. I want to highlight two of them and the others are normal reoccurring business. The first is that we have a policy on presenting to the finance committee when we have waivers of bid contracts and the policy requirement says that we are presented this information on a quarterly basis. Both the administration, as well as the committee, has decided that there may be a more efficient way to do that. We are going to do it on an annual basis. It isn't going to change any of the information we get, it is going to change the timing of it. Then we asked for a couple of other items of information to be included in that annual report on waivers and our financial staff said that would not be an issue.

The next one that generated a fair amount of conversation was Ms. Devine presented a policy on tuition waivers for Third Party Provider/Direct Enroll study abroad programs and the establishment of a fee for the participating students in those programs. Currently, students who enroll in study abroad programs pay the tuition or charge for these programs to the host institution and pay a uniform instructional fee and general fee to Ohio State, essentially requiring the student to make two tuition payments. The policy that was proposed to us would establish a tuition waiver for the money going to Ohio State for this but in its place institute a fee of $400 for program administration costs. The committee thought the first part of that made sense, the tuition waiver part, but we couldn't make heads or tails out of the $400 fee. We couldn't really see how our costs change. This involves 125 students at the moment and $50,000. What we approved is the tuition waiver aspect of this but we are suggesting that we not put the $400 fee in for our students and hopefully the Provost and the President agree with that. That is our best advice to you.

All the others were standard reoccurring things that we need to do with respect to property easements and the reappointment of self-insurance board members and the like. I think in the interest of time, Mr. Chairman that concludes my remarks.

President Alutto:

If I could just interrupt for a moment. In the interest of time as well, I think that action, whether we agree with it or not, is the right thing to do. It shows the level of responsibility of our committees. We are not just arbitrarily increasing fees. They are being looked at and hard questions are being asked. I am absolutely comfortable with that decision. I think it is a great principal to follow.

Mr. Jurgensen:

I want to thank Dr. Cloyd for this, and all the students should thank Dr. Cloyd for this, because he really zeroed in on this first and led the rest of the committee in the conversation about it and I think it was a great conversation.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Great report. Any questions for Jerry? Thank you. Last committee is our Governance Committee chaired by Alex Shumate.

Mr. Shumate:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Since our last meeting, the governance committee has met on two occasions: March 7th was a special meeting and again this morning we met. We have several items to recommend for approval.

The first is a resolution approving the reappointment of one of our charter trustees. It is number three on the consent agenda. Corbett Price is being recommended for a new three year term. In 2009, when the board established and created the charter trustee position, guidelines were put in place to permit a second consecutive three year term. We are recommending that, based upon Corbett's contributions, the value that he has added to the board and to the university, particularly with his business background, his healthcare background, and the expertise that he brings to our deliberations. We also would like to note that Corbett has been a dedicated alum and strong contributor to the university. We unanimously recommend Corbett for appointment to his second consecutive three year term.

Secondly, item number four on the consent agenda is the resolution that would ratify the reappointment of Steve Steinour to our Medical Center Board. Steve is the Chairman, President, and CEO of the Huntington Bank. He is a community member of the Wexner Medical Center Board. He was first appointed in this fall. He has been an outstanding contributor, bringing expertise in business and finance, and we would recommend that he also be appointed to a full three year term beginning on May 14, 2014.

We also heard, as a committee, from Dr. Alutto regarding the presidential transition, which is certainly a priority item and a very important item. As we all are aware, Dr. Michael Drake will begin as our 15th president on June 30th and Dr. Alutto has been leading the effort and working closely with Dr. Drake to manage and prepare for the transition of leadership. Over the past two months, Dr. Alutto and Dr. Drake have been in ongoing discussions and conversations regarding the university. Thank you, Dr. Alutto, for managing the process surrounding the periodic visits that Dr. Drake is making to our campus in advance of his formal arrival. Those have been productive and very efficient. Dr. Drake will be visiting us at the end of April and plans are being put in place for a series of meetings and engagements.

Ben Reinke then updated us on the student trustee selection process. It is always a bittersweet process in that if we are selecting a new student trustee, it means that we are replacing one of our current trustees. Interestingly, Ben is leading the process to select his successor. As always, he is doing an outstanding job. We will have a reception with the ten candidates that have been identified immediately following this meeting and we certainly encourage all trustees to participate in that reception. That will be followed up by a meeting early next week where the committee will be recommending three names to go to the governor for review and then final selection.

Finally, the governance committee discussed the election of our board officers. As we all know, pursuant to our bylaws, we will be electing new officers today. Those officers will formally take their office immediately following this meeting and Tim Smucker will lead a discussion on that matter after the vote on the consent agenda.

That completes my report. If there are any questions, I would be happy to address those.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Thank you, Mr. Shumate. Any questions for Alex?

Mr. Reinke:

I attended a mini conference of student trustees across the state over the past weekend and the process which we go through, which the board approved now about 25 years ago, to select our student trustees, it became evident that it is best in practice in the state. Everybody is looking what we are doing to try to mirror that at the other universities so thank you for your support.

Mr. Schottenstein:

And we look forward to attending the mixer after this.

The consent agenda is now before the board and I would like to call on Dr. Alutto to present it.

CONSENT AGENDA

President Alutto:

Thank you. Today we have 24 resolutions on the consent agenda. Please note that item number 20, Tuition Waiver for Study Abroad Programs, has been revised. An updated copy of this resolution is at your seats and copies are available for the public.

We are seeking approval of the following:

Chadwick F. Alger

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 15, 2014 of Chadwick F. Alger, Professor Emeritus of Political Science in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Chadwick F. Alger served in the United States Navy as an Aviation Radioman in the Pacific from 1943-1946. After the war, he received his BA in Political Science from Ursinus College (1949) and his MA from the School of Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins University in 1950. He worked as a Naval Intelligence Analyst at the Pentagon from 1950-1954 and then decided to pursue a PhD in political science. He received his PhD from Princeton University in 1957. Alger began his academic career at Northwestern University in 1958. He came to The Ohio State University in 1971 as the Mershon Professor of Political Science and Public Policy. Alger directed the Mershon Center's Program in Transnational Intellectual Cooperation in the Policy Sciences from 1971-1981. He was Director of the Mershon Center's Program in World Relations from 1982-1991. Alger was a devoted teacher and mentor who launched many graduate and undergraduate students into successful careers. In 1997, he won The Ohio State University's International Outstanding Faculty Award.

Alger published numerous books including Internationalization from Local Areas: Beyond Inter-State Relations, The United Nations System: A Reference Handbook, Peacemaking in the Post Cold War Era, and The Future of the United Nations System: Potential for the Twenty-First Century, along with more than 100 articles, many of them in the discipline's most influential journals. His early work was characterized by an interest in the empirical study of international organizations, with the goal of uncovering how they really work in practice. He also explored the important role individuals and non-governmental actors play in world affairs and global governance. Alger's call to focus on the global connections and influence of local community organizations, commercial institutions, and grassroots activists changed the way the discipline approached world politics. He was elected president of the International Studies Association, which established the Chadwick F. Alger book prize in his honor.

Alger was also a pioneer in the field of peace studies working tirelessly to expand the tools available to peacekeepers and peace builders. He served as the secretary general of the International Peace Research Association and chaired the Consortium for Peace Research, Education, and Development.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Chadwick F. Alger its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Roscoe C. Hinkle

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on November 22, 2013, of Roscoe C. Hinkle, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Sociology.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Professor Hinkle graduated with a BA from Elizabethtown College, Elizabethtown, Pennsylvania in 1943. At the start of WWII, he was selected for Alternative Service in an Experiment in Semi-Starvation. Today, these findings are being used to assist those with eating disorders. He received his MA in Sociology from the University of Minnesota in 1948 and his PhD in Sociology from the University of Wisconsin in 1952.

He began teaching at Ohio State University in 1955 after serving as an instructor at Indiana University and the University of Maine and as an Assistant Professor of Sociology at the University of Rochester. His major research interest was the history of American sociology, especially the development of sociological thinking in the late 19th and early 20th century when the discipline was new to the United States. His books The Development of Modern Sociology (1954) (co-authored with his spouse and colleague Gisela Hinkle) and Founding Theory of American Sociology 1881-1915 (1980) documented the fact that early American sociologists had a theoretical framework and developed theories of class and inequality, as well as addressing social problems. This countered the popular idea that sociological theory was a European import. He served as Chair of the Section on Theoretical Sociology of the American Sociological Association and was active in the founding of that section. Over his years at Ohio State, he taught sociological theory to almost all of the graduate students, and many of the undergraduates, who earned their degrees in sociology.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Roscoe C. Hinkle its deep sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

David R. Kelly

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 13, 2014 of David R. Kelly, Assistant Professor Emeritus in the Department of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery.

David Robert "Dave" Kelly, was a loving husband, father, grandfather, caring doctor, proud veteran, athlete, comedian, and best friend. He passed away peacefully at the age of 73 surrounded by his family on Thursday, February 13, 2014.

Professor Kelly lived with unique passion on so many levels, a passion that his Mom and Dad would say started right out of the gate in Marion, Ohio in 1940. He graduated from Marion Catholic High School in 1958, graduated from the University of Dayton where he served as class president, and graduated from The Ohio State University College of Medicine in 1965. Professor Kelly was a physician and surgeon at The Ohio State University for over 30 years, interrupted only by his service to his country in the United States Army from 1970-1972. In Vietnam, Dr. Kelly was Chief of the Trauma Unit at the 24th Evacuation Hospital, Long Binh Post. His service was a source of pride his entire life.

He loved his career as a doctor and medical student educator at Ohio State. Among his honors, Professor Kelly was the Vice/Chairman of the Department of Otolaryngology and a recipient of the prestigious Honor Award from the American Academy of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery. He also served multiple terms as president of the American Cancer Society for Ohio and as a member of the Board of Directors of the Physicians for The Ohio State University. He was recognized as an "Outstanding Teacher" by the Department of Otolaryngology, known for his dynamic lectures. He also thoroughly enjoyed the honor and camaraderie of his affiliation with the Sierra Cascade Trauma Society, serving as a member and past President of the Columbus Medical Forum, and being the founding member of the Ohio ENT Surgery Center. Yet, clearly his greatest honor was serving his patients and working with his colleagues. He was known by his patients and friends at the hospital for his warmth, sense of humor, and devotion to the practice of medicine.

Professor Kelly was also a great teammate and a competitor. His Ohio State team, which included his sons and residents from his department, represented Ohio State in the National Flag Football Championship five times. Playing sports, golfing, and skiing into his 60's with his kids, grandkids, and friends were some of his greatest joys.

Professor Kelly's courage and good humor remained intact throughout his battle with Alzheimer's.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor David R. Kelly its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Charles L. Mand

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on January 26, 2014, of Charles L. Mand, Professor Emeritus of Physical Education in the College of Education.

After serving in World War II, Charles Mand attended Queens College, where he played basketball and studied economics and biological science. He continued his education at New York University, and then received his PhD in physical education from The Ohio State University in 1955. He taught in New York City schools before returning to Ohio State as a Physical Education faculty member. In 1980, he became director of the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation in the College of Education. He oversaw innovative changes in the program and the development of Larkins Hall as Ohio State's central facility for healthful activity.

Professor Mand felt strongly about education and physical activity of all types for all ages. For 20 years he directed the Devereux Foundation's summer program for adolescents being treated for mental health issues. In 1982, he co-founded the Adventure Education Center to enable outdoor adventure PhD graduate students to continue their studies with area youth. The non-profit center now plans events and team-building opportunities for more than 500,000 participants each year.

He is the author of several books, including Physical Education: Teaching and Curriculum Strategies for Grades 5-12, co-authored with Drs. Daryl Siedentop and Andrew Taggart, The School Environment and Emotional Health, Outdoor Education, and Handball Fundamentals. He also studied physical education programs in Ohio schools and consulted for Ohio State's recreational sport program and the Bryan, Texas Recreation Commission.

Professor Mand was a man of many passions, including environmental issues. He was always surrounded by children and taught thousands the joy of exploring nature. He was a staunch supporter of democratic politics. His family and friends remember fondly his intellect and strong opinions, based on voracious reading of books and numerous daily newspapers.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Charles L. Mand its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Richard G. Seyler

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on January 30, 2014, of Richard G. Seyler, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Physics in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Richard G. Seyler was born on June 14, 1933. He received his BS, MA and PhD degrees in physics from Pennsylvania State University; his doctorate was awarded in 1961. After a two year visiting position at The Ohio State University he became an assistant professor in the Physics Department in 1964, advancing to full professor in 1973. Dick was a member of the American Physical Society, Nuclear Division. He taught, at one time or another, nearly all of the theoretical physics courses that the department offers, and was highly regarded by his students. He was also an active consultant with Battelle Memorial Institute, the Carnegie Institute of Washington, and the Triangle Universities Nuclear Laboratory in North Carolina. He engaged in a robust program of research in nuclear structure and nuclear reaction theory, and was particularly valued by his colleagues in experimental nuclear physics as a theorist who relished working directly with them and with their data. Several of his publications were authored jointly with experimentalists.

Professor Seyler ably served his department as its first vice chair for administration from 1983 to 1995. His duties included overall organizational responsibility for the entry level physics courses which comprised a majority of the department's teaching work. He also was responsible for faculty teaching assignments as well as the host of departmental matters that fall under the rubric of "administration." He approached these duties with rare diligence, a cheerful mien, and inveterate attention to detail. His long tenure in this role under three chairmen testifies to his ability to get along not only with his chairs, but also with his entire faculty cohort in the sensitive matter of teaching assignments and annual reviews.

He enjoyed playing tennis with his colleagues and was an avid bridge player as well. His tennis partners say that Dick was a great partner to have on the tennis court, that you could always count on him to get the ball back over the net. He wasn't flashy but he got the job done and he always had a great smile. One of his long-time bridge partners says that he was a very decent person but also had a very competitive side, which tournament bridge satisfied. All his colleagues agree on his gentleness and decency attributes which well characterized his many years of service to the Department of Physics.

He devotedly cared for his wife, Mary, until her death in 2011.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Richard G. Seyler its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

medicine in Newark. He and Dr. Warren Koontz established Moundbuilders Doctors Park in Newark.

He was an honorary member of the Licking Memorial Hospital Medical Staff and was Chief of Staff at the time of the move from Newark Hospital to Licking Memorial Hospital in 1966. He was a member of the Licking County Medical Society, the Ohio State Medical Association, and the American Medical Association. He was a Fellow of the American Academy of Family Practice, a Charter member and Diplomat of the American Board of Family Practice, and a member of the American Geriatric Society. He was Secretary from 1978 to 1980 of the OSU Medical Alumni Association, member of the board of Governors of the Ohio State Medical Alumni Association from 1987 to 1995, life member of The Ohio State University Alumni Association, life member of The Ohio State University Medical Alumni Association, a member of OSU Presidents Club, a member of the Order of Hippocrates, and a member of of OSU Advocates.

In 2001 he received the 50 Year Alumni Achievement Award from the Ohio State University College of Medicine and Public Health for distinguished service and achievement in the practice of medicine and dedication to the high ideals of the profession.

Dr. Sinsabaugh was a lifetime member of the Air Force Association, a member of the Licking County Historical Society, the Granville Historical Society and a Benefactor of the Ohio State University and the Ohio State University College of Medicine. He was a rotary member for 20 years and was chair of the Polio Plus Campaign and raised $250,000 to eradicate polio in the world. In the 1950's he and Dr. William Dayhuff were responsible for the fluoridation of water in Newark.

He funded a Chair in the Department of Psychiatry at Ohio State. He served with great dedication on The Ohio State University's Newark Board of Trustees from 1994-2002.

John T. Mount

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 20, 2014, of John T. Mount, Vice President and Dean Emeritus in the Office of Academic Affairs and former secretary of the Board of Trustees of the University from 1958 until 1968.

John T. Mount brought to his work a characteristic ability to develop individual potential to the fullest. He dedicated his life, in fact, to helping generations of Ohio State students achieve their goals.

Throughout the years, Ohio State presidents asked him to tackle different and difficult assignments from leading and mentoring to creating and cultivating a new program or department. No matter what the request, John took on the job with his notable modesty and supreme dedication to the university.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Reared on a farm in Middleton, Ohio, John earned his first money as a boy with a 4-H swine project. A few years later, in 1932, he raised a grand champion steer that sold for 24 cents a pound. He also worked in a steel mill before his 4-H membership led to connections with Ohio State and a scholarship to the university.

His parents, despite not having the advantage of a high school diploma, taught their son the value of an education and the pursuit of excellence. To help with expenses and the $27.50 quarterly tuition fee, John earned 15 cents an hour as an elevator operator in Starling-Loving Hospital, where he took the doctors and nurses to the dining area. He graduated with a bachelor's degree in agricultural education in 1941.

John went to work, in 1941, as an OSU County Extension Agent for Highland and Clark counties, then served for almost four years in the U.S. Navy during World War II. He earned a master's degree from the University of Wisconsin before rejoining Ohio State in 1946 as an assistant professor and 4-H program supervisor in 32 counties.

Beginning in 1960, John held four vice presidency positions: for the university, educational services, student life, and the regional campuses. He was a faculty member in the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences and an administrator to the office of Ohio State President Novice Fawcett and the Ohio State Board of Trustees.

As a firm believer in education and democracy, John became known as the initiator of Ohio State's student recruitment efforts. He personally called on hundreds of prospective students and their parents and wrote thousands of letters each year to let them know about the resources and benefits he received from an Ohio State education.

After retiring in 1983, John continued to hold the titles of vice president emeritus for regional campuses, dean emeritus for University College and senior volunteer associate for The Ohio State University Foundation.

His incredible influence continues to be felt in many ways. In addition to lifelong involvement with 4-H, he helped institute a Mortar Board chapter on Ohio State's campus in 1970. He also helped establish the Mount Leadership Society in memory of his late wife, Ruth Weimer Mount, a longtime university administrator and volunteer who passed away in 1997. Each year, the society provides leadership lessons for 100 of Ohio State's top incoming students.

For his commitment to helping others and enriching the lives of countless people at Ohio State, John received many university accolades and honors: Distinguished Service Award, the John B. Gerlach Sr. Development Volunteer Award, the Ohio Staters Founders Award and the E. Gordon Gee Spirit of Ohio State Award. In 2009, he was presented with the Mortar Board Distinguished Lifetime Membership Award. John also was a member of the Ohio 4-H Hall of Fame and, with Ruth, accepted the Volunteer Philanthropist of the Year Award from the Central Ohio chapter of the Association of Fundraising Professionals.

On his 90th birthday in 2008, John's friends and colleagues surprised him with a celebration at the then-newly opened Nationwide and Ohio Farm Bureau 4-H Center at Ohio State. At the event, President Gee awarded him with the Ambassador Medal for his performance, devotion, and representation of the university.

John's philanthropic generosity extended to areas of Ohio State that he valued. In addition to helping launch the Ohio 4-H Foundation, he supported the student societies Mortar Board and Sphinx, the Alumni Association Endowment, and the Ruth Mount Leadership Endowment. He established scholarships and leadership initiatives, as well as a gift annuity in support of the 4-H Center and a retirement account designated to the university. A Leadership Suite in Longaberger Alumni House and Mount Hall also bear his name in tribute.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

John's legacy includes his cherished family. He was married to Bertha until her death in 1967. In 1969, he married Ruth, a former Associate Dean of Women and Dean of Students at Ohio State; she passed away in 1997. Caroll Cook Mount, his third spouse and a 1941 Ohio State graduate, passed away in 2005.

John had three sons and a daughter, all Ohio State graduates. Thomas L. Mount, MD, now retired, and his wife, Carol, live in Blacklick, Ohio. John R. Mount, PhD, and his wife, Kathryn, reside in Delaware, Ohio. Donald E. Mount and his wife, Judy, live in Marion, Ohio. Daughter Marilyn A. Mount passed away in 2012 following an illness. John also had eight grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

At 95, John continued to be involved with Ohio State and his family and friends. His devotion to his alma mater will sustain students for generations to come.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of John T. Mount its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Mr. Schottenstein:

I think at this time, Mr. Shumate, I am told that you have some things that you might want to share with us.

Mr. Shumate:

I would like to start the process of opening to the fellow trustees the opportunity to offer any comments regarding our three departing trustees. We had the opportunity to salute them last night at our dinner but I think it is appropriate during our public session at our formal meeting to thank Ben, to thank Alan and Bobby for their service and their dedication and their contributions.

Ben, I would say to you that we thank you for your service and I would observe that not only are you an outstanding student, but an outstanding trustee period. You have been a full participant as evidenced by your comments during this meeting. You add great value to our deliberations, to our decision making, and I have enjoyed working with you and learning from you in terms of working together to advance our great university.

Alan, we have talked extensively about your contributions as a member of our medical affairs committee but I also want to thank you for your advice and council that you have given in our governance committee. We are fortunate to have a trustee board that is constantly looking to improve and get better and we are in fact, I think, doing an outstanding job of aligning our activities, our focus with the priorities of the university and the critical needs of the university. You have contributed mightily to our Governance deliberations and process.

Bob, as I mentioned last night, we thank you not just for your leadership over the past two years but your outstanding service during your nine years as a trustee. I think you have served on every committee that has ever been created at the university and been a part of two presidential search processes and the very successful process that has led to Dr. Drake joining us on June 30th. Thank you for all of your leadership and your sacrifice because you really made service on this board a priority and we appreciate that.

But again, other trustees who would like to make comments?

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Dr. Wadsworth:

I would like the opportunity. Thank you. I will do the same circle of Ben, Alan, and then Bobby. Briefly Ben, I think I do understand what you are doing in your research but I certainly wouldn't if you told me it in French. One aspect of Ben that I would like to point out that I may have a unique insight to is that I was able to help him visit a couple of world leading scientific institutions. What I would like to tell you is that the feedback that I got back from them about him was outstanding. They were really impressed, I think you got a number of job offers, and he is a great ambassador. I would like to bring that aspect of his character to the trustees.

Alan Brass and I first met before I was a trustee when we had an early version of the Medical Center Board where we brought the hospitals together under a unified scheme with Steve Gabbe's help and others. Alan, you were a tremendous mentor and very kind to me in welcoming me to that and really guided me through everything that I did there. We continued subsequently in many different endeavors and I want to say thank you for your friendship and help.

Bobby has been a friend and a colleague ever since I joined and he was incredibly welcoming and very thoughtful to me in helping me as a trustee and I wanted to thank you for that. We worked together on many topics, most recently and most intensely on the search for the next president. I think the collegiality and contributions from not only the trustees but the faculty, students, and staff in that search are an enduring memory for me of how people can come together to achieve an outcome. Your leadership in that, Bobby, was exemplary and it is obviously a major hire in the life of the university. Bobby has led us through tumultuous times in the last couple of years. That is a word that we keep hearing about in the recent past but I am sure it will be smooth going forward. In guiding us through those choppy waters, and so on, he has done it with grace, poise, and with great insight. I will just conclude it by saying Bobby Schottenstein is passionate about The Ohio State University and it shows in everything he does. Thank you, Bobby.

Mr. Jurgensen:

History always records what leaders decide. Those decisions are there for all of time. History, often times, does not do a good job of capturing how the leader did it. In the case of you Bob, I appreciate your inclusiveness of the whole board in tough decisions. A lot of the weight of these decisions disproportionately falls on the shoulders of the chairperson, whoever that is. You can't avoid it. You can't get out from underneath it. It is what comes with the high paying job that you have. You always have a choice of how to do it and you did it in a very cohesive way. You invited us all in and you demonstrated care throughout the whole thing. You always kept the priorities squared away as I was concerned. You kept what was in the best interest of the university first and foremost no matter how difficult and painful some of those decisions had to be along the way. I think we all thank you for that.

Dr. Reid:

Ben, you are a scientist, I am a scientist. I have a lot of respect for that and certainly a lot of respect for your brains but I do want to give you a little bit of advice as a chemist. Whenever you put something together, however you construct it, if it does not work out, hydrochloric acid is great. It will dissolve the best of them.

I really do appreciate, and I have shared this with you many times, the combination of both brains and heart with you. Also, there will be a day, I did go online and take the SAGE test and I am okay for now, but there may be a day when I don't have the brain cells that I have now, so I am hoping that you would agree to a brain stem cell transplant. That is all I ask.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Alan, you are a very special man. I came on the board and just like Jeff has said, you welcomed me and gave me tutorials and mentored me. You also came with your wife and my husband and made me feel like family so many things have happened in the medical center because of you and I have deep appreciation for it.

Bobby, I think Jeff said it. You love this place! When you don't like something you act one way, when you like you know you act another way. When you are in love with something, that is the highest level that you can get and it has shown through in so many ways. I think the university itself is blessed to have someone who loves it like you do. I also believe that any time you fall in love you can't get too far from that person. Even if you are a distance away or years away, you still have that heart beat for them. I look forward to how it is that you will love us in the future. You won't be on the board but you will love us in the future and I look forward to that. I also thank your wife for making you the man that you are.

Judge Marbley:

I echo the same sentiments of my colleagues but with a spin of somebody who is neither an academic nor a business person. I would say to you Ben that you truly are sui generis. You are one of a kind. You are the rocket scientist. You brought the exuberance of youth to our board, but with the maturity of someone well beyond your years. Not to mention your intelligence, which I will say was far above that of the collective wisdom of the board. You raise our collective IQ considerably.

Alan, that hospital was the capstone of a brilliant career. I remembered you telling me how many hospitals you had built in your career and you built yet another one. Whenever I see that building, I will see you because you were instrumental in getting that done. You demystified the healthcare financing process for most of us on the board. You took me under your wing. That was the first committee I was on. You explained to me EBIDA and related concepts, for that I am eternally grateful. I am not sure that I will ever use it again but I am grateful for that.

Bobby Schottenstein, one of my truly dear friends. I had the opportunity to toast you once and I described you as a man's man. That was perfect except that it was to an audience of youth and I didn't know my audience. Today, I know my audience. One of your great loves is the Ohio State University. I would describe you as a leaders' leader. You presided over the retirement of a president, you presided over the hiring of what we all believe will be one of our great presidents. What your enduring legacy will be, as far as I am concerned, is that you never met a challenge. You always saw opportunities to make this place a better place for the students, for the people who work here, and for all who love Ohio State as much as you do. For that, we will always be eternally grateful.

Dr. Cloyd:

Ben, I want to heartedly endorse everything that has been said about your participation on this board and you as an individual. Outside of the board and people that know the board's work, I don't know if there is really an appreciation of what a hard job and complete job it is for student trustees to participate on this board while you are pursuing a full academic career in addition to it. I think many people see it as recognition and neat. It is a lot of hard work and you have done the hard work. I agree with the judge that you have elevated the IQ of this group but also your commitment and your participation has been very beneficial to the board at this time. Thank you and best wishes in your career ahead.

I want to make combined comments to Alan and Bob. We have had a chance to work together a lot over this last decade and you are two remarkable individuals. Your contributions to the university have been enumerated here today and I know they haven't captured all of them but there are a lot of great ones and to me, it is because of the approach you have brought to board work. One has been mentioned, both of you are just passionate lovers of this university and its mission.

Secondly, you are both extraordinarily smart, hardworking, and dedicated, and you brought that talent to every issue that you have encountered but thirdly, you have done it in a way that you have always respected that there are paradigm differences from your base of experience and with the university. There has been the right sensitivity in interacting with the university so you both have been absolutely marvelous leaders in your positions on the board and we all thank you for that.

I guess finally on a personal note, what is most important to me, I have had an opportunity to make two great friends who will be lifelong friends. I love you both and we may not be sitting around this table but I know we are going to be sitting around a lot of other tables and it means a lot.

I will just conclude with something that has already been done but is well deserved and that is a board shout out to Jeri. This has been a tumultuous time and we thank you for your ongoing support for what this board does because it has been very helpful so thank you Jeri.

Mrs. Hoeflinger:

As the new kid on the block, I will just make a few quick comments. Ben, I came on the board and I wasn't quite sure how student trustees worked. I would go home and talk to my kids about how incredible it is to see what you have been able to accomplish and where you are. I would not meet my college daughter in a dark alley anywhere because she is a little mad at you because she is like "who is this Ben" and when we talk about Stacie because she goes to another university and when you look at what you have been able to accomplish. I think we get used to it here on the board hearing from incredible people but you are really at the very top and seeing you be able to do that has just been incredible for me to watch and it gives a new level of commitment for my freshman in high school as I continue to push her.

Alan, you retired almost right after I came back to Ohio from moving to Maine but you have been somebody I have heard so much about in the healthcare field. Just incredibly respected. People talk about you and your experience and you have been so kind to me as I have come on as well and we have had some great conversations, too few, and hopefully we will be able to keep those up. As I heard from the Judge, you demystified the healthcare process for him, I am hoping you could do that for me because I am thinking wow that is really still mystifying as it continues to move on.

Bobby, you were one of the first people I met when I was talking about coming on the board and you were so unexpected for me. I got the opportunity to sit down when I met you at your office at M/I Homes and I thought "wow he is going to be too busy for this conversation, we will be quick" and you sat down and just the amount of how you lead from your heart and you were talking about OSU and your family and M/I Homes and just everything that you were doing. To hear the way you talk, I knew you would be an incredible leader of the board and the way you were incredible open and kind to me as I came on. I have been so appreciative and sorry that I am not going to see you going on. I think we both got, and we talked about this, a little misty eyed when we were talking about our dads and the Ohio State board and how important Ohio State was to them. Then you last night talked about the same part of Carmen Ohio that gets me every time and I just thought that this is the right man for the job so hopefully we will see more of you as we continue or I will see more of you as we go on and Jeri, I know we joke about it, but he is like "my Ohio State job is more than half of my other job" and I thought "oh my God." If you have both of those going on and everything else, you must really love what you do and love your family because we did spend a third of the time talking about you and your daughter and the kids so I will miss working with you on this board. You have been an incredible leader but I am delighted to have been here for a little bit of that time as well.

Mrs. Kass:

It is hard to follow all of these comments because so much has really been said already but I am just feeling sad only because these are three giants in my mind. Three giants that we are losing off of our board and I think that all three of you have an enormous capacity and I think that defines all three of you.

Ben, you are so curious. You inspire us. I do this little thing on the side on leadership in a high school program that is community facilitated and I recommended Ben a couple of times because he is a real model of leaders and he was asked back because he was so wonderful, just a real model for all of us so thank you and I have enjoyed our friendship.

Alan, you are sort of this gentle giant and you have always been just the kindest man and I really appreciate it. I wish I could even get to know you more and hope we continue a friendship but your tenacity with this medical enterprise we have is really, again, inspiring for me.

Bobby, I have known you so long and to be able to work with you and see you in this way, you have created a total collaborative environment in this Board of Trustees. I think we feel so welcomed and so included and we are able to have the kind of conversations because you facilitate them for us. I appreciated from the very get go when I got on this board how you were probably my first call and how you welcomed me the way you always welcome everyone. Your passion again as everyone has said has been a model for us. We have giants inspiring, and models for all of us to be better people ourselves so thank you all.

Mr. Ratner:

Obviously at this point, almost anything you say begins to be redundant and I will try to avoid that but one of the things you notice as you serve on the board for a longer period of time and I am now one of the older serving board members, I might add, it took me a long time to realize that we sort of moved up to the front of the table and that there was actually an arrangement in the seating. Not being one to pick up on subtle cues very often, but when I joined the board which was almost seven years ago, there were two very senior members of the board who had already been on the board for probably I thought a decade and that was Alan and Bobby. I realized in fact that they had only fairly recently become members of the board but right at the very beginning they showed me a depth and an understanding, a passion, and love for the university that just overwhelmed me. I did quickly realize that they were relatively recent additions to the board at that time but as I said, they appeared to me to be some of the people that had always been on the board and who were so deep in their love, their care, and their understanding of the university.

Ben, you picked up a legacy and one of the things you have done which I think is remarkable as all of our student trustees have done is that in a very short time on the board, you have shown your own independence, your own character, obviously things other members have commented on – your intelligence and your passion and your deep care for your fellow students – but you have also recognized that you have a role to play in picking up the student trustee role and while each of the student trustees that have served are individuals in their own right and are remarkable, they all seem to follow very much of a pattern: they are willing to pick up the ball from the person in front of them, pass it on to the next person in line, and do so while building an even deeper and richer addition if you will of what the student trustees on our board mean. I might add by the way, as far as I know in Ohio I think we are the only board that welcomes our student trustees to all of our deliberations. We are also the board that has been pushing the state legislature to in fact include student trustees as full voting members and when I talked to some of my friends who were trustees for other universities, they say "you have got to be kidding. Why would you want to do that?" And I say "well then you obviously don't have students on your boards like we have students on ours." It is you as an individual but it also you as a part of that legacy.

Again, Bobby and Alan, it is you as individuals but you are two people that really highlight I think what Linda pointed out as well that there is a tradition of service and a way that the board has matured and changed and developed. Bobby, your role as chair again, you took what is an impossible task in normal times and dealt with in impossible times but you also moved the whole idea of the board, the way we work, the collegiality, the sense of togetherness, and as everybody mentioned, you have reached out in personal ways to each of us and in that way, you have certainly become for me as well a friend that I will cherish for a long time.

Alan, we have worked together in the trenches so to speak. Not quite in the trenches while we didn't really build anything ourselves. It felt like we did and it was really a learning experience for me as well and again as Linda said, to see somebody with both your passion and compassion, your ability to be both incredibly smart about what you do, incredibly knowledgeable, but to really care at a very deep level about the people you work with; it has been a remarkable experience and one I really cherish. Thank you.

Ms. Krueger:

First of all, Ben and I started the same time on the board so it is really kind of fun to see his growth and development and I had a chance to speak in great length with you mom and dad last night and your brother and you can see quickly where Ben gets a lot of his character from. His parents are extraordinary people and I am so proud of you.

What I would like to say is Ben, in addition to all the great comments that have been said, is that Ben is here as a reminder of what the role of a student is. It is who our customers are and you have done a really good job representing the customers, Ben. I want to appreciate that because I think as a trustee, we sit around this table making these decisions forgetting who our customers are. We get caught up in the politics of the moment and so on and you have been a good voice of the students reminding us that we are here to serve the student and I thank you for that. It really helped keep us centered and grounded.

Alan, you and I served on the old Medical Center Board and that is where I got to know you and you were one of the first people that came up to me and welcomed me and you were so kind to me as well. I have probably never met a more positive person than you even though you have had some illnesses as of late, you always are positive and say "I am feeling great" and I have never heard you say a negative word so thank you for that and thank you for your leadership. Thank you for what you have done for the Medical Center and it is a good foundation for us to continue to build on.

With Bobby, I knew Jeri well before I knew Bobby. I met Jeri through the James because of all the work she has done at the James and I have been very involved with the James over the last 12 years and so to meet Bobby I thought well she is a treasure so he has to be somewhat worthy to have a wife like Jeri. You were quite the pleasant surprise because I knew you as a community titan if you would, but not as an individual with the compassion you have for the university. I would just say that in addition to the collaborative and inclusiveness and all those things, I think that you have been really great to seek our input. I give you credit because you will seek wisdom and a lot of people won't do that. I think their egos won't allow them to do that but if you don't know something, you aren't afraid to ask the tough questions or find out and seek wisdom from others and say "am I thinking about this correctly" and so on and I really admire that about you.

Last but not least, I appreciate your availability. There were nights I would call you late or send you emails and you always responded back to me and I really appreciate your openness and your availability. Your passion is infectious. You can pay people any amount of money to do a job but you can't pay people any amount of money to care and it is evident in all that you do and that is what inspires us to do a better job and be better trustees so I thank you for that. Thank you for your friendship.

Mr. Smucker:

It is very difficult to follow all the comments that have been made. I think it is interesting that all three of you have given us, enriched our lives, and not just on this experience but enriched our lives. Alan, when I first met you, your warmth, your willingness to share with me your insights in how we can make this board better. I will always remember, as recent as a couple hours ago, some conversations that we had. It gives me an insight into what this university is all about.

Ben, it has been said you are wise beyond your age. One of the things that I think we all love about Ben is that he will say things that we would all like to say before we say them and he doesn't have any kind of intimidation as I think any of us would have. He does not hold back and so thank you and I wish you all the best.

Bobby, I have had the privilege to know Bobby in another experience on the Huntington Board but Bobby what I treasure about you the most is you don't hold back at all. You give us the insights. You are not afraid to open up. I want to know what is going on here. Here is how I look at it. Is it right? That openness has made this board very enriched so thank you and I wish you and Jeri all the best.

Mr. Shumate:

Ben, Alan, and Bobby, would you like to make a couple of comments?

Mr. Reinke:

Thank you. It is always hard to talk about my Ohio State experience because it has been so vast over the last eight years. There have been so many things that have changed me and shaped me. The person I was as an 18 year old coming here and the person I am today are the same at the core but I can tell you that I have grown a ton and the last two years on the board I think I have grown more than I ever have before. Ohio State has given me both a second home and more than I could have ever asked for. You don't really know what you are getting yourself into when you go to college.

My view of the university is a place that is supposed to teach you how to learn and inspire the desire for knowledge to perpetuate that for the rest of your life and this has been like a capstone. I am still hanging around for another year or so, hopefully less, we will see, but the level of engagement and the opportunity to serve the university at this level has been the most rewarding thing I have ever done and it is great to have a chance to give back a little bit what the university has given me which is more than I can really put into words.

I would like to thank Evann and Stacie, who I have served with as student trustees. It is a little intimidating. We pretend like it's not but it is definitely intimidating when you step in the board room the first time. Both Evann and Stacie have been there in the trenches with me, trying to figure out how this works.

Secondly, I would like to thank Bobby individually who has taken his time to meet with us for a couple hours at a time every three months to check in and see how we see things going on the board and also talk to us about his vision for where the university is going. That is an opportunity to feel more comfortable in this setting as well and it has basically shaped I think our experience on the board.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Finally, thank you everybody on the board and to the leadership of the university who have taught me more than I could have ever imagined. This is the only opportunity that I have ever had to engage in truly strategic discussions and think about the big picture and to do it with people who are so passionate about Ohio State who have individually taught me something. Every one of you have. That has been a really great experience so thank you for everything.

Mr. Brass:

You know, sitting around here listening to everybody and to be honest with you, I got a little teary eyed. This is a bittersweet moment. All of us have sat on a lot of boards. Dana and I added them up because I am retired and I am slowing things down now. One, because of a health issue which is going very nicely, thank you, but it is just that time of life that you do that. This is my 85th board that I have been on but this is the one that I love the most. I am an alumnus of here. I am not going to tell you how many decades ago but it is more than four.

When I got the call to serve on this board by the governor, I went down and had lunch and spent a couple of hours with the governor. I walked out of there saying "oh my." I was very humbled. I was very honored and what a great privilege.

I have to tell you, the years I have been here have just amplified that feeling. I have a little statement that I have always said to family members and colleagues and that is the smallest good deed is better than the grandest good intention and this room is full of great deeds. Doing those things the right way, having the right spirit, having the right priority, and it has really been an honor for me to be here with you. I like the word family. You heard me use that last night. You are extended family. I have a great wife and great kids and great grandkids but I am very lucky to have a great family so thank you very much. Thank you.

Mr. Schottenstein:

First of all, thank you for all of those words and thoughts. I can't tell you how much it means and I just hope half of them are true. I appreciate the comments about Jeri. They are so spot on. Jeri is sitting next to two of my best buddies in the world. To her left is my son Josh and to her right is her brother, Jeff, and they are sort of book ends in our lives. I am thrilled that they are here as well.

I do love this place for what it is. I think I love it even more for what it can become and the people sitting around this table are going to help make that happen. It has been an honor to serve with all of you and many of those who came before you that I mentioned last night. Certainly Judge Duncan, a blessed memory, was a tremendous chair. I talked about the work that you did, Gil, as chair which really propelled this university forward in terms of our Governance model. Les Wexner, I learned so much from him and I think this university benefitted so much from him as chair and it has been an honor to be on this board with David Frantz as the Secretary for a while and now most recently, Blake. The great support from the ladies behind us and those that are sitting out in the audience, the board office is a part of the family here and certainly to work with great presidents like Gordon Gee and now you, Joe, and I know we have a great one coming.

When I think of what I have learned the most and with this I will close and Alex, I think that you have reminded me of this more than any other member on this board, it is really important what we do. I get that. The whats are really important but how you do things will help lead to doing the right whats and the importance of governance. The right governance will lead to great decisions and I don't think I ever would have said that in 2005 when I joined this board but right now, no matter what challenge, no matter what issue, no matter what strategy we think we need to tackle, if we get the governance right, we will make the right decision. I have never been associated with a group that I think had as good of governance as this one currently does have and it is because of so many of you. It is not about me.

Finally, I would just say that going forward, and we will have one more item on the agenda, we couldn't have a better chair coming in to take over in this seat than Jeff Wadsworth who I have loved getting to know. There is something about these scientists. We talked about Ben last night and I said things about Alan as well and I am not going to repeat them now. Just the honor it has been to serve with you and go out with you. Jeff, you can count on me in any way, shape, or form any support you need. I know you will get it from the three of us and you will certainly get it from me and this university has a lot to look forward to with you holding the gavel.

Anyway, with that again thank you to everyone.

With that it is my pleasure to call on someone I have known for a long time and they just don't come any better, Tim Smucker, to present the final motion.

Mr. Smucker:

Thank you, Bobby. The board bylaws specify that the officers of the board shall be elected at the February or April meeting of the board. The rule states and I quote "all officers shall take office at the adjournment of the April meeting of the board, or on April 1 if there is no April board meeting, and shall hold their office through the following April of the Board of Trustees until their successors are elected and qualified." The Governance Committee meeting discussed, as Alex said earlier, the traits and qualities that we as a board need to look for in a chair and although we have heard about those in the last half an hour, I think it is worthy to repeat them here.

The chair of the board must be able to build consensus, be collaborative, and inclusive. The chair must encourage open, candid, and productive dialogue among all board members, be objective and decisive, be an effective communicator, advance good governance practices, and be transparent with regards to board operations. The chair must put the university and the board before self, serve as a tireless advocate for Ohio State, and invest the time necessary for board duties and engagement with the university community.

I want to say that the process we have gone through, as Bobby just said, this governance is supported by the actions that we do. It is thorough and transparent and the current chair, for the next several minutes, I guess, Bobby, has provided outstanding examples of these qualifications and criteria and we are fortunate to have that caliber of leadership. Clearly, as Bobby just said, we are also fortunate to have the leadership that Jeff Wadsworth will provide going forward and has provided in the process in selecting our new president as well as every other duty that Jeff has undertaken.

So therefore, after a careful and diligent review by the Governance Committee, we have the following slate of officers that we would like to recommend to the full board for approval. I am happy to report that we would like to place a nomination for Dr. Jeff Wadsworth as Chair of the Board. We would also like to place in nomination Ron Ratner and Alex Shumate as Vice Chairs of the Board and Blake Thompson as Secretary of the Board. I would like to move this slate of officers to be approved by the board.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Resolution No. 2014-78

Synopsis: Approval of the following slate of officers, is proposed.

WHEREAS the Bylaws of the Board of Trustees specify that the officers of the board shall be elected at the February or April meeting of the Board; and

WHEREAS all officers shall take office at the adjournment of the April meeting of the board or on April 1 if there is no April board meeting, and shall hold their office through the following April meeting of the board of trustees and until their successors are elected and qualified; and

WHEREAS a careful and diligent review was conducted by the Governance Committee and the following slate of officers is recommended for approval by the Board:

Jeffrey Wadsworth, Chair
Ronald A. Ratner, Vice Chair
Alex Shumate, Vice Chair
Blake Thompson, Secretary

NOW THEREFORE

BE IS RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees hereby approves the slate of officers as presented.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Any discussion or other nominations from the floor? There being none, we have a motion and a second.

Upon motion of Mr. Smucker, seconded by Judge Marbley, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution with ten affirmative votes, cast by Trustees Mrs. Hoeflinger, Mr. Porteus, Ms. Krueger, Mr. Smucker, Mr. Jurgensen, Dr. Reid, Mrs. Kass, Judge Marbley, Mr. Brass, and Mr. Schottenstein.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Congratulations.

Dr. Thompson:

I will call you Mr. Chairman one more time. Before you leave, we know you have wielded that gavel with wisdom and insight, and we are very thankful for it. We don't want you to ever be without a gavel, so we have provided you here a ceremonial gavel to take with you and remember your service.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Thank you. There being no other business to come before the board, this meeting is adjourned. The next meeting of The Ohio State University Board of Trustees will take place on Friday, June 6, 2014.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

Attest:

3335-6-03 Probationary service, and duration of appointments for tenure-track faculty.

(A) through (C) no change

(D) Exclusion of time from probationary periods.

- ~~(1) — An untenured regular tenure-track faculty member will have time excluded from the probationary period in increments of one year to reflect the caregiving responsibilities associated with the birth of a child or adoption of a child under age six. Department chairs or school directors will inform the office of academic affairs within one year of the birth of a child or the adoption of a child under age six of a probationary faculty member unless the exclusion of time is prohibited by paragraph (D)(3) of this rule. The probationary faculty member may choose to decline the one-year exclusion of time from the probationary period granted for the birth or adoption of a child under six years of age by so informing her/his TIU head, dean, and the office of academic affairs in writing before April 1 of the new mandatory review year following granting of the declination. The exclusion of time granted under this provision in no way limits the award of promotion and tenure prior to the mandatory review year (see paragraph (D)(2) of this rule). The maximum amount of time that can be excluded from the probationary period per birth event or adoption of children under age six is one year.~~
- ~~(2) — A probationary tenure-track faculty member may apply to exclude time from the probationary period in increments of one year because of personal illness, care of a seriously ill or injured person, an unpaid leave of absence, or factors beyond the faculty member's control that hinder the performance of the usual range of duties associated with being a successful university faculty member, i.e., teaching, scholarship, or service. Requests to exclude time from the probationary period made under the terms of this paragraph must be submitted to the chair of the tenure-initiating unit. Requests shall be reviewed by the tenure-initiating unit promotion and tenure committee which shall advise the tenure-initiating unit chair regarding their appropriateness. Such requests require approval by the tenure-initiating unit chair, dean, and executive vice president and provost. A request to exclude time from the probationary period for any of these reasons must be made prior to April 1 of the year in which the mandatory review for tenure must occur. The extent to which the event leading to the request was beyond the faculty member's control, the extent to which it interfered with the faculty member's ability to be productive, and the faculty member's accomplishments up to the time of the request will be considered in the review of the request.~~
- ~~(3) — A request to exclude time from the probationary period for any reason will not be granted after a nonrenewal notice has been issued nor will previously approved requests to exclude time from the probationary period in any way limit the university's right not to renew a probationary appointment.~~
- ~~(4) — Except in extraordinary circumstances a maximum of three years can be excluded from the probationary period for any reason or combination of reasons for an instructor, assistant professor or associate professor. Exceptions require the approval of the tenure initiating unit chair, dean, and executive vice president and provost.~~
- ~~(5) — Tenure-track faculty members will be reviewed annually during their probationary periods regardless of whether time is excluded from that period for any of the above reasons unless their absence from campus during an excluded period makes conduct of such a review impractical.~~
- ~~(6) — For purposes of performance reviews of probationary faculty, the length of the probationary period is the actual number of years of employment at this university less any years of service excluded from the~~

~~probationary period under the terms of this rule. Expectations for productivity during the probationary period cannot be increased as a consequence of exclusions of time granted under the terms of this rule.~~

- ~~(1) There are three circumstances under which probationary tenure-track faculty may obtain an exclusion of time from probationary periods. These exclusions are intended to recognize that there are factors that can impact the ability of probationary faculty to meet the criteria for tenure within the probationary period outlined in paragraph (B) of this rule. A request to exclude time from the probationary period for any of the reasons listed in paragraphs (a)-(c) of this rule must be made prior to April 1 of the year in which the mandatory review for tenure is scheduled to occur.~~

~~(a) A probationary tenure-track faculty member will have time excluded from the probationary period in increments of one year to reflect the caregiving responsibilities associated with the birth of a child or adoption of a child under age six. This exclusion is guaranteed provided the faculty member informs the head of her/his tenure initiating unit, the dean, or the Office of Academic Affairs in writing within one year of the birth or the adoption unless the exclusion of time is prohibited by paragraph (D)(3) of this rule, and no later than April 1 of the mandatory review year. It is the responsibility of the unit head to inform the college dean and office of academic affairs of the birth or adoption. The probationary faculty member may decline the one-year exclusion by informing her/his unit head in writing before April 1 of the original mandatory review year. It is the responsibility of the unit head to inform the college dean and office of academic affairs of the faculty member's choice to decline the exclusion. The maximum amount of time that can be excluded from the probationary period per birth event or adoption is one year.~~

~~(b) A probationary tenure-track faculty member may apply to exclude time from the probationary period in increments of one year because of personal illness, care of a seriously ill or injured person, an unpaid leave of absence, or factors beyond the faculty member's control that hinder the performance of the usual range of duties associated with being a successful university faculty member, i.e., teaching, scholarship, or service. Requests to exclude time from the probationary period made under the terms of this paragraph must be submitted in writing to the head of the faculty member's tenure initiating unit within one year of the illness, care, or other factors. Requests shall be reviewed by the tenure initiating unit promotion and tenure committee which shall advise the head of the tenure initiating unit regarding the appropriateness of the request. In units that do not have a promotion and tenure committee, the eligible faculty shall review the request. Such requests require approval by the head of the tenure initiating unit dean, and executive vice president and provost. A request to exclude time from the probationary period for any of these reasons must be made prior to April 1 of the year in which the mandatory review for tenure must occur. The extent to which the event leading to the request was beyond the faculty member's control, the extent to which it interfered with the faculty member's ability to be productive, and the faculty member's accomplishments~~ up to the time of the request will be considered in reviewing the appropriateness of the request.

- (c) Probationary tenure-track faculty members on less than full-time service for part or all of their probationary period may request an exclusion of time from the probationary period on the basis that they are less than full time. Such requests require approval of the tenure initiating unit chair, dean, and executive vice president and provost. The exclusion shall be for an integral number of years based on the principle that the usual probationary period represents full-time service. The maximum permissible exclusion of a probationary period under this paragraph is one year for a probationary instructor, three years for a probationary assistant professor and two years for a probationary associate professor or professor.
 - (2) A request to exclude time from the probationary period for any reason will not be granted after a nonrenewal notice has been issued nor will previously approved requests to exclude time from the probationary period in any way limit the university's right not to renew a probationary appointment.
 - (3) Except in extraordinary circumstances, a maximum of three years can be excluded from the probationary period for tenure track faculty for any reason or combination of reasons covered in the provisions in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this rule. For probationary faculty who are on appointments of less than full time, the maximum is four years for an instructor, six years for an assistant professor, and five years for an associate professor or professor for any reason or combination of reasons covered in the provisions in paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this rule. Exceptions require the approval of the tenure initiating unit chair, dean, and executive vice president and provost.
 - (4) Tenure-track faculty members will be reviewed annually during their probationary periods regardless of whether time is excluded from that period for any of the above reasons unless their absence from campus during an excluded period makes conduct of such a review impractical.
 - (5) For purposes of performance reviews of probationary faculty, the length of the probationary period is the actual number of years of employment at this university less any years of service excluded from the probationary period under the terms of this rule. Expectations for productivity during the probationary period cannot be increased as a consequence of exclusions of time granted under the terms of this rule. Probationary faculty who are on part-time appointments should be reviewed in the context of their reduced duties.
 - (6) The exclusion of time granted under for reasons specified in this rule in no way limits the award of promotion and tenure prior to the mandatory review year.
- (E) Service credit of up to three years may be granted for prior work experience at the time of the initial appointment and requires the approval of the tenure initiating unit chair, dean, and executive vice president and provost. Prior service credit shortens a probationary period by the amount of the credit and once granted cannot be revoked except through an approved request to exclude time from the probationary period. ~~Prior service credit will not be granted for employment in any auxiliary title (such as adjunct, visiting, clinical, or lecturer), special title (such as graduate associate) or part-time position (less than fifty per cent service).~~

~~(F) Probationary regular tenure-track faculty members on less than full-time service for part or all of their probationary period may request an extension of the probationary period. The extension must be requested prior to the beginning of the year in which the normally scheduled mandatory review for tenure would take place and requires approval of the tenure initiating unit chair, dean, and executive vice president and provost. The extension shall be for an integral number of years based on the principle that the usual probationary period represents full-time service. The maximum permissible extension of a probationary period under this paragraph is one year for a probationary instructor, three years for a probationary assistant professor (including time spent at the rank of instructor) and one year for a probationary associate professor or professor.~~

~~(G)~~(F) Probationary appointments may be terminated during any probationary year because of inadequate performance or inadequate professional development. At any time other than the fourth year review or mandatory review for tenure, a nonrenewal decision must be based on the results of a formal performance review conducted in accord with fourth year review procedures as set forth in paragraph (C)(3) of this rule. Notification of nonrenewal must be consistent with the standards of notice set forth in rule 3335-6-08 of the Administrative Code.

~~(H)~~(G) Probationary appointments may be terminated for fiscal or programmatic reasons. When nonrenewal is based on fiscal or programmatic reasons, the faculty member should be advised that such nonrenewal is a possibility and formal notice of nonrenewal should be provided as soon as possible after the need for nonrenewal is established. Nonrenewal of a probationary appointment for fiscal or programmatic reasons does not entail a performance review and requires the prior approval of the executive vice president and provost. Because hiring decisions should be based on informed assumptions regarding the future availability of resources and of programmatic needs, approval of such nonrenewals will be based on the extent to which convincing evidence is provided that the fiscal or programmatic reasons for the nonrenewal could not be anticipated when the appointment was made and are expected to be long lasting.

~~(H)~~(H) Decisions affecting the nonrenewal of a probationary appointment may not be arbitrary or capricious or carried out in violation of a faculty member's right to academic freedom. Faculty rule 3335-5-05 of the Administrative Code provides a procedural mechanism under which an aggrieved probationary faculty member can challenge a nonrenewal decision believed to have been improper. In that instance, however, the burden of proof is on the probationary faculty member to establish that the nonrenewal decision was improper. (See also rule 3335-6-05 of the Administrative Code). (B/T 10/5/84, B/T 7/10/87, B/T 11/2/90, B/T 4/8/94, B/T 7/7/95, B/T 5/3/96, B/T 4/4/97, B/T 2/6/98, B/T 6/5/98, B/T 12/4/98, B/T 7/12/2002, B/T 6/4/2004, B/T 6/7/2005, B/T 3/2/2007, 6/18/2010, 2/11/2011)

3335-9-23 Minimum scholastic requirements.

(A) Rules 3335-9-23 to 3335-9-28 of the Administrative Code shall apply only to undergraduate students (as defined in rule 3335-9-01 of the Administrative Code). The academic standards controlling warning, probation, and dismissal of professional and graduate students shall be established by rule of the faculties of the college in which the professional student is registered, or of the graduate school if the student is a graduate student; provided, however, that an undergraduate professional student shall not be dismissed from the university unless he or she has fifteen or more deficiency points as defined in paragraph (C) hereof and computed on the basis of the student's entire undergraduate program, first been placed on probation following his or her most recent past quarter, semester, or term of enrollment.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

- (B) Application of rule to transfer students. For the purpose of this rule the ~~deficiency points point-hour ratio~~ of a transfer student from another university, who is admitted to advanced standing in this university shall be computed only upon work done at this university.
- (C) Requirements and definition. ~~In order to remain in good standing in the university a student must maintain a~~ A cumulative point-hour ratio (see rule 3335-8-26 of the Administrative Code) of at least 2.00 ~~is required for graduation (see rule 3335-9-30 of the Administrative Code). Students below a 2.0 will remain eligible to enroll at the university, subject to the terms of their probation, as long as they have not been academically dismissed.~~ Deficiency points are applied only to the records of students whose cumulative point-hour ratio is below 2.00 and are defined as the number of credit points a student would have to earn to bring his or her cumulative point-hour ratio up to that level. Deficiency points may be calculated by subtracting the total number of credit points earned from twice the total number of credit hours attempted for which calculable grades ("A," "A-," "B+," "B," "B-," "C+," "C," "C-," "D+," "D," "E," or "EN") were given. (B/T 6/4/2004, B/T 6/7/2005)

3335-9-24 Academic warning.

- (A) Any student who has never attended another college or university and who seeks to enroll as a new freshman in this university shall be placed on special warning when his or her application for admission is received and processed if his or her academic credentials indicate the probability of low achievement. The student shall be so informed before final registration and the payment of fees are completed, except as provided in rule 3335-9-27 of the Administrative Code. The fact that special warning has been given shall be made known to the office of the college or school to which the student seeks admission.
- (B) If, at the end of any his or her first semester, summer term, or session, a student subject to the provisions of rule 3335-9-23 of the Administrative Code has accumulated fewer than fifteen deficiency points earned a point-hour ration below 2.00, he or she shall may receive a warning from the dean of his or her college or director of his or her school, ~~except as provided in rule 3335-9-27 of the Administrative Code instead of being placed on probation.~~ (B/T 6/22/2012)

3335-9-25 Academic probation.

- (A) Any student ~~who has accumulated fifteen or more deficiency points whose cumulative point-hour ratio has fallen below a 2.00~~ shall be placed on probation. The probation shall continue provided the student's college considers the student's progress to be satisfactory and shall be removed when the ~~deficiency points are fewer than fifteen cumulative point-hour ratio has reached a 2.0~~. The student shall be notified of probationary status by the dean of the college or the director of the school in which the student is registered, except as provided in rule 3335-9-27 of the Administrative Code. Such notification shall include a clear statement of what shall be considered to be satisfactory progress.
- (B) Probation by special action. If at any time the preparation, progress, or success of a student in an academic program is determined to be unsatisfactory, the college or school in which the student is registered shall be empowered to place the student on academic probation. An undergraduate student admitted with conditions and who has not satisfied the conditions after earning thirty semester credit hours through regular course enrollment at this university shall be placed on probation.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

~~(C) — Requirements and definition. In order to remain in good standing in the university a student must maintain a point-hour ratio (see rule 3335-8-26 of the Administrative Code) of at least 2.00. Deficiency points are applied only to the records of students whose point-hour ratio is below 2.00 and are defined as the number of credit points a student would have to earn to bring his or her point-hour ratio up to that level. Deficiency points may be calculated by subtracting the total number of credit points earned from twice the total number of credit hours attempted for which calculable grades ("A," "A-," "B," "B-," "C+," "C," "C-," "D+," "D," "E," or "EN") were given.~~

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

Chris Matthews

DOCTOR OF COMMUNICATION

A television news anchor with remarkable depth of experience, Chris Matthews has distinguished himself as a broadcaster, newspaper bureau chief, presidential speechwriter, Capitol Hill chief of staff and bestselling author during his long career.

Mr. Matthews began his professional life in public service, working in the U.S. Senate for five years for Sen. Frank Moss of Utah and Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine; in the White House for four years under President Jimmy Carter as a speechwriter and on the President's Reorganization Project; and for six years as top aide to legendary Speaker of the House Thomas "Tip" O'Neill Jr. After cutting his teeth in politics, Mr. Matthews turned to journalism.

From 1987 to 2000, he served as Washington, D.C., bureau chief for the San Francisco Examiner, followed by a two-year term as a nationally syndicated columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle. During his time as a reporter, Mr. Matthews covered many important historic events of the late 20th century, including the fall of the Berlin Wall and the first all-races election ever held in South Africa. In 1994, he began his television career on the NBC-owned America's Talking network before launching his popular show, "Hardball with Chris Matthews," three years later on MSNBC.

Mr. Matthews has received the David Brinkley Award for Excellence in Broadcast Journalism and the Gold Medal Award for Distinguished Achievement from the Pennsylvania Society. He is the author of multiple bestselling books, including Hardball: How Politics is Played, Told by One Who Knows the Game, Kennedy & Nixon: The Rivalry that Shaped Postwar America, Jack Kennedy: Elusive Hero, and Tip and The Gipper: When Politics Worked.

A graduate of Holy Cross College, Mr. Matthews did graduate work in economics at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He worked for two years as a trade development advisor with the U.S. Peace Corps in the southern African nation of Swaziland.

RECIPIENTS OF HONORS

Barry R. Bloom

DOCTOR OF SCIENCE

For the past half century, Barry Bloom of Cambridge, Massachusetts, has been a pioneer in the field of global health. After receiving his bachelor's degree in biology from Amherst College and his PhD in Immunology from Rockefeller University, Dr. Bloom established himself as one of the world's pre-eminent scientists in the areas of infectious diseases, vaccines and health policy.

His exceptional body of research—primarily focused on immunology and the pathogenesis of leprosy and tuberculosis—has shown an enduring commitment to the application of cutting-edge science to alleviate the infectious disease burden of the developing world. Through his impressive work, Dr. Bloom has improved vaccine approaches for tuberculosis and discovered crucial breakthroughs in how immune responses protect against microbial threats. He has published more than 350 articles and continues to provide commentary on current public health concerns ranging from TB to HIV to obesity.

His fundamental contributions have made him a trusted public health policy advisor. He served as an advisor to the White House on International Health Policy, and for more than 40 years, he has been extensively involved with the World Health Organization, where he chaired the Research Advisory Committees on Leprosy, Tuberculosis, Malaria and Tropical Diseases.

He also has been a member of the WHO Advisory Committee on Health Research.

Dr. Bloom has received many honors for his lifelong dedication to infectious disease research and education, including the first Bristol-Meyers Squibb Award for Distinguished Research in Infectious Diseases and the Robert Koch Gold Medal for lifetime research in infectious diseases. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the Institute of Medicine, and the American Philosophical Society. He is currently a Distinguished Service Professor and Joan L. and Julius H. Jacobson Professor of Public Health at Harvard University, where he served as dean of the School of Public Health from 1999 to 2008.

RECIPIENTS OF HONORS

John B. Gerlach Jr.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

John B. "Jay" Gerlach Jr. of Columbus, Ohio, has been an engaged and dedicated supporter of The Ohio State University since his graduation more than three decades ago. After receiving his bachelor's degree in business administration from Ohio State, Mr. Gerlach upheld his family's legacy of philanthropy and public service while serving in various capacities at Lancaster Colony Corporation, a specialty foods manufacturer and marketer founded in 1961 by his father and grandfather.

Mr. Gerlach's service history is diverse and robust. In 1997, the same year he was named chair and CEO of Lancaster Colony Corp., he also was elected to the University Foundation board of directors, where he served as board chair from 2009 to 2013. He currently serves as a board member for Huntington Bancshares, Nationwide Children's Hospital and the Recreation Unlimited Foundation. He has been chair of the Richard M. Ross Heart Hospital board since 2004, and for almost two decades, he has served on the Dean's Advisory Council at Fisher College of Business.

Nearly every year since 1979, Mr. Gerlach and his family have supported a variety of initiatives, from scholarships and building projects to medical, polar and wetlands research. They contributed generously to Fisher and The Ohio State University Wexner Medical Center, supporting the medical center expansion and the creation of Fisher's state-of-the-art business campus. Mr. Gerlach and his wife, Aleusha, also have provided charitable backing of the medical center's Neurosciences Program, which has enabled physicians and scholars to embark on innovative research to improve patients' lives.

By giving of his time and resources, Mr. Gerlach has helped shape the future of Ohio State, and he has strengthened the university's relationship with the Columbus corporate community. As a natural ambassador for the university, he has championed the Ohio Scholarship Challenge, and served on multiple committees supporting Ohio State's Affirm Thy Friendship and But for Ohio State campaigns.

Mac A. Stewart

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

Though Mac A. Stewart retired in 2010, his visionary leadership at The Ohio State University left a lasting impression on the entire community. As a much-admired administrator, scholar and mentor, Dr. Stewart dedicated his 40-year career at Ohio State to improving the delivery of educational services for socioeconomically deprived and culturally different students.

Dr. Stewart joined Ohio State as a residence hall director and doctoral student in the early 1970s. After earning his doctorate in higher education administration, he became assistant dean of University College, where he spent 27 years and ultimately served as dean. During his tenure, he developed programs to recruit and retain a diverse student body. While serving as vice provost for Minority Affairs and special assistant to the president for diversity, he was instrumental in the creation of the acclaimed Todd A. Bell National Resource Center on the African American Male.

An icon of service, Dr. Stewart served on more than 30 committees at Ohio State, including two presidential search committees, University Senate and the Council of Deans. He also served on external evaluation teams for various higher education institutions, and on numerous boards, such as the Buckeye Boys Ranch, Columbus Academy, Mount Carmel College of Nursing, Nationwide Children's Hospital and the International Foundation for Education and Self-Help.

Dr. Stewart has received many honors, notably the Josephine Sitterle Failer Award from Ohio State's Alumni Association and the Frederick Patterson Award from the Greater Columbus United Negro Fund. As a faculty member in the College of Education and Human Ecology, he published widely in a variety of professional journals. In 1983, he was selected as a member of the editorial board of The Negro Educational Review, where he also served as chair of the editorial board and editor-in-chief.

A practicing psychologist for decades, Dr. Stewart received a bachelor's degree in sociology from Morehouse College and a master's degree in counseling from Atlanta University.

Executive Summary

With The Ohio State University's strategic commitment to become a preeminent global university, one of the institution's six internationalization goals is the establishment of a physical presence in strategic locations. This endeavor, known as the Global Gateways initiative, will further enhance the internationalization of the university's teaching, research, and service missions. These Gateway offices are physical sites in the business districts of key regions that serve as mini-embassies for The Ohio State University. Ohio State opened its first two Gateway offices in Shanghai, China in February 2010 and Mumbai, India in March 2012. This document will outline the plan for expanding operations into São Paulo, Brazil with a targeted opening date in the early Fall of 2014.

By having this institutional presence in these strategic regions, Ohio State opens the door to creating new partnerships and making lasting connections that benefit all stakeholders to include the students, faculty, and alumni of Ohio State. The Global Gateways also benefit friends of the university, surrounding communities and the state of Ohio by demonstrating Ohio State's engagement in the global marketplace and its commitment to being an active participant in knowledge-based centers of the world.

After three successful years of operation, the Global Gateways is seeking central administration approval and support to launch the next Global Gateway office in Brazil. Ohio State has been strategically positioning itself for the opening of its third Gateway office over the past four years. In addition to numerous faculty and staff visits to the region and alumni engagement activities, the Vice Provost for Global Strategies and International Affairs and the Global Gateway staff have been facilitating further partnerships with academic, government, and corporate institutions in Brazil. Through these efforts, Ohio State has secured a partnership that grants the university free office space in one of the prime locales of São Paulo to operate the Brazil Gateway office. The Office of Academic Affairs has further committed a start-up budget and average of $200k annually for the next two academic years to launch the Brazil Gateway. Detailed metrics have been developed to assess the effectiveness of the Brazil Gateway and will be re-examined on an annual basis.

We request The Ohio State University Board of Trustees to approve our plan to create another Affiliated Entity under the OSU Global Gateways, LLC for the launch of the third Global Gateway office in São Paulo, Brazil in 2014.

Background

The Ohio State University is committed to becoming a preeminent global university, and accordingly preparing its students to succeed in the global marketplace as nationally and internationally informed and engaged citizens. The President's and Provost's Council on Strategic Internationalization assessed the university's globalization progress in 2009 and concluded that, in order to fully internationalize the campus and its community, Ohio State needed to:

- Increase the percentage of international faculty and students
- Promote scholarship on major global issues
- Create international dual degree programs
- Promote collaboration with alumni and Ohio's international business ventures
- Develop an international physical presence
- Increase international experiences for undergraduate, graduate and professional students.

With approval and support from the Council of Deans and The Ohio State University Board of Trustees, Ohio State developed a two-pronged approach to internationalization:

- 1) The Global Gateway strategy, which establishes representative offices in strategic locations around the world.
- 2) Internationalization of the academic dimensions, which focus on research enhancement and curriculum content, study abroad, international partnerships, dual degrees and a global option certificate to facilitate international experiences for students in any discipline.

Global Gateways

Ohio State's Global Gateways have served as the catalyst to launch the university's goal of becoming a preeminent global university. The Gateways are representative offices around the world that allow the university to forge new partnerships with a multitude of constituencies, recruit international students, aid curriculum development with international themes, implement dual degree programs, facilitate faculty research and reconnect with a growing international alumni base. Currently located in Shanghai, China and Mumbai, India, these multifaceted offices allow more flexibility than satellite campuses, serving instead as an international portal through which global engagement both at home and abroad is achieved.

While China and India were the first locations to boast Gateways, the university plans to establish its next Global Gateway in São Paulo, Brazil in 2014. Research concluded that these are the regions in which Ohio State had existing ties in terms of international students, study abroad programs, faculty research and institutional collaborations, and a strong alumni network. Despite no permanent physical presence to date in Brazil, recent efforts in student mobility, faculty research facilitation, and alumni engagement have laid the groundwork for the opening of the Brazil Gateway.

Impact of the Global Gateways

Since opening in 2010 and 2012, respectively, the China and India Gateways facilitate many activities that contribute to the overall internationalization of Ohio State and foster global opportunities for students and faculty.

- Ohio State has won NAFSA's Senator Paul Simon Award for Comprehensive Internationalization
- Partnerships forged: 42 international agreements, one student exchange agreement and two dual degree agreements (College of Engineering and the College of Arts and Sciences).
- Federal grants of $200,000 helped Ohio State open a Center for American Culture in partnership with Wuhan University.
- Ohio State successfully competed for a three-year U.S. Department of State grant that provides $9.6 million over three years to implement the Critical Language Scholarship Program in East Asia.
- Ohio State is one of four U.S. universities to receive the Obama-Singh 21st Century Knowledge Initiative award ($250,000) for a project dedicated to training STEM faculty in India.
- Building on existing collaborations, Ohio State and the Brazil state of São Paulo created a $1.4 million funding source to support research and innovation.
- International Affairs has awarded more than $185,000 in Gateway-country focused grants, allowing students and faculty to actively study abroad, intern with international corporations and conduct research abroad.
- Ohio State has 10 study abroad programs and one student exchange program in China; six study abroad programs in India; seven study abroad programs and two student exchange programs in Brazil.
- Since 2010, Ohio State's international student population has grown by 22 percent to 6,039. The number of students from China has increased by 68 percent to 3,606.
- To support the growing Chinese student population at Ohio State, the Gateways helped facilitate pre-departure orientations held in Beijing, Guangzhou and Shanghai in summer 2013 with more than 500 students and their parents attending.
- Ohio State has reconnected with more than 600 alumni living in the Greater China area and in Mumbai, India. The China and India Gateways developed programming for Ohio State's international alumni base, including networking opportunities, social events and career forums.

The Case for Brazil: An Overview

Brazil has approximately 2,500 higher education institutions, of which 2,250 are private and student enrollment in private sector institutions represents over 75% of the market. Private higher education institutions have done much to address the issue of access, but many are lacking academic rigor and educational quality compared to world-class institutions. However, Brazil's best public universities are ranked in the company of global universities of caliber comparable to US and European universities. There exists a compelling market opportunity for foreign universities to both recruit students for programs on their home campuses and to offer online and in-country programs targeting Brazilians who are looking for a top-tier higher education. These opportunities exist in diverse areas, across the spectrum of university program types including undergraduate, graduate, professional, and short-term programs such as executive trainings.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

The geographical, cultural, financial, political, and other types of alignment and similarities between the USA and Brazil create unique opportunities for collaboration and exchange in fields such as science and engineering, health and wellness, energy and the environment, and agriculture. The Brazilian government recognizes the critical need to educate and train its population, especially in critical science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) areas. In response, the Brazilian Science Mobility Program (formerly Science Without Borders) was launched in 2011 and will send more than 4,000 Brazilian students to US universities during the 2013-2014 academic year. This is part of the government's greater plan to send more than 100,000 Brazilian students to foreign institutions in coming years. Foreign universities with relationships and credibility in Brazil, combined with strategic institutional focus and application facilitation, will be uniquely poised to harness the opportunity of the revenue and wealth of brilliant minds to be gained by the Brazilian government-funded initiative.

Ohio State has been strategically engaged in Brazil for nearly fifty years. Dating back to 1964, Ohio State has maintained research and teaching collaborations with the University of São Paulo's Luiz de Queiroz College of Agriculture (ESALQ/USP) in Piracicaba. Building upon that partnership over the years, Ohio State now boasts over 20 active faculty collaborations and a number of student mobility programs. Brazil also presents a great opportunity for further diversification of international student enrollment at The Ohio State University through their federally-funded Scientific Mobility Program.

The Brazil Gateway office will be located in the Moema district, one of the premiere business districts in the city of São Paulo. São Paulo is the largest city in the southern hemisphere and boasts the largest economy in all of Latin America. Furthermore, it is home to the top-rated university in all of Latin America, the University of São Paulo (USP), where Ohio State maintains a wealth of different research, teaching, and exchange collaborations.

The Brazil Gateway Operational Plan

This operational plan will detail the range of programs and services provided to Ohio State stakeholders. We will then illustrate the management and staffing plan as well as the financial plan for the continued operation of the Brazil Gateway for the next three years.

We will then outline our Assessment plan and list the goals and metrics we have developed to measure success. These metrics are consistent for all of the Global Gateways and we will illustrate how the programs and services offered through the Brazil Gateway office bring value to The Ohio State University to justify our request for centralized funding of current and future Global Gateway initiatives.

The Brazil Gateway office will lead, administer, and conduct a variety of programs and services to Ohio State faculty, staff, students, alumni, and corporate partners.

Programs and Services for Ohio State Academics

With the mission of the Brazil Gateway office to serve as an embassy for The Ohio State University in a strategic region of the globe, our primary goal is to support OSU students, faculty, staff, and Colleges. These activities will provide value to The Ohio State University through the creation of opportunities to increase collaboration with institutions in Brazil, bring more international students to the OSU campus, and provide an increased number of opportunities for our students and faculty to experience Brazil. Furthermore, the Brazil Gateway will provide resources and a networking platform for current and future alumni to broaden their engagement with Ohio State.

1. Students

A primary role of the Brazil Gateway will be to scout future study abroad locations for Ohio State students. As a rising economic power and technology leader within its region, Brazil offers a variety of experiential learning opportunities for our students. The Brazil Gateway will work to create relationships with institutions and universities to develop further opportunities for study abroad programs. This includes potential research opportunities for OSU graduate students to partner with local Brazilian institutions to further their academic learning.

Furthermore, forecasts of the global outlook for professional talent show that American graduates will increasingly be relied upon to interface with groups of co-workers located across the globe. Graduates who are able to apply technical skills in multicultural environments that often require travel and interaction with people of diverse cultures will be in heavy demand. Accordingly, the locations and study abroad opportunities identified by OSU's Brazil Gateway will allow accomplished student leaders from Ohio State the advantageous opportunity to enter the global talent pool with a leg up on their peers from comparable institutions, showing future employers they have the versatility to apply their technical skills in the challenging contexts only an emerging economy can provide.

In addition, the Brazil Gateway will continually scout the local region for international internship opportunities for OSU students. Our students gaining practical work experience in an international setting will further the internationalization agenda for Ohio State to truly become a preeminent global university.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

The Global Gateways office has created the following programs to support student mobility to our Gateway regions, and the Brazil Gateway will adopt these programs post-launch.

The Global Internship Program

As universities across the nation prepare their students to excel in the global marketplace, the Global Gateways office has created the Global Internship Program (GIP) to help Ohio State's students integrate into a worldwide network of professional opportunities. In today's global economy, international internship experience is an invaluable asset, allowing students to familiarize themselves with international working environments while collaborating on real-world projects with some of the world's most innovative companies to reinforce their learning from the OSU campus. The GIP is a non-credit bearing program available to Ohio State students of all majors and backgrounds, providing them with working and learning experiences through project-based internships, themed workshops, alumni mentorship and cultural excursions.

These internships will take place during the summer semester and last approximately 3 months, from mid-May to mid-August. The program provides Ohio State students with an array of resources in a comprehensive packaged service which includes: visa application fees, international health insurance, housing, ground transportation upon arrival, one week of cultural orientation, a one-on-one Ohio State alumni mentor, and 24/7 phone support.

During its pilot year, the Global Gateways office has partnered with corporate entities throughout China to include Chrysler, Bosch, and Cardinal Health to provide this valuable experience to both domestic and international students. This program will further expand into India in AY2013-2014 and into Brazil the following year. The Global Gateways office will work with the corporations to create the internship position descriptions, recruit for the program, and conduct initial screening of applicants. The Gateways office will also work with the various academic units on campus to refine the learning outcomes for the students and develop a mechanism to evaluate the internship experience. These internships will set the stage for stronger and deeper partnerships with our network of global corporate partners.

Pre-Departure Orientation Program

The pre-departure orientation will introduce admitted students to The Ohio State University and Columbus, allow them to meet other new students and cover important and helpful topics such as travel information, campus resources, and health and safety. The orientations will take place in Gateway office regions in the summer prior to students' arrival on campus.

Representatives from offices on campus will be introducing themselves and the services provided by their offices. These offices include the Global Gateways, the China, India, and Brazil Gateways, International Student Services, all within the Office of International Affairs; Student Affairs Administration, Student Activities, University Housing and Student Wellness in the Office of Student Life; and the Office of Enrollment Services.

The orientations will be a one-day event open to admitted students and families. The orientation will include ESL placement testing, a number of sessions lasting 40-55 minutes in length and ample time for question-and-answer sessions. In addition to representatives from Ohio State offices, alumni and current students currently in the Gateway region will be involved to provide assistance and answer questions.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

One of the goals of pre-departure orientation is to provide students with information on university requirements. These requirements include the visa application and travel arrangements, mandatory health screening, placement tests, how to pay tuition and fees and academic needs. However, in addition to helping organize these required tasks, we also wish to provide information on cultural adaptation, campus life and involvement, and health and safety awareness. The orientation will provide an opportunity for students and parents to feel connected to the Ohio State community prior to arrival.

The Global Gateway Graduate Student Research Abroad Grant Program

The Global Gateway Graduate Student Research Abroad Grant encourages and promotes the professional and academic development of graduate researchers at The Ohio State University by providing financial support for students to undertake research abroad. In return, students will assist the University in pursuing its strategic international goals by creating and bolstering relations with universities and other institutions across the world. This grant is provided through a partnership between the Office of International Affairs' Global Gateway office, The Ohio State University Council of Graduate Students, and the Office of the Vice Provost for Graduate Studies.

Graduate students receiving grants must demonstrate that their proposed research abroad is based upon their professional goals and will promote Ohio State's international presence through the potential collaborations that they will develop. Successful applicants are awarded a grant of up to $1,000 per year.

Three criteria are used to judge grant applications: (i) will the student benefit professionally by the research abroad, (ii) will the student's participation in the program help promote The Ohio State University's mission internationally, and (iii) will the student be able to build a network or connections that can be used by The Ohio State University in the future. Special considerations are made for students traveling to Gateway regions that include China, India, Brazil, and Turkey.

In its second year, this program has funded 22 graduate students for grants to conduct research abroad in all of the anticipated Gateway countries and a host of other nations throughout the world.

International Student Recruitment

The Brazil Gateway office will facilitate international student recruitment by combining its physical presence in Brazil and consequent proximity to international students. The Brazil Gateway will provide local expertise to assist the Office of Enrollment Services to develop a recruitment strategy for Brazil. We will work closely with both the Office of Enrollment Services and the Graduate School to assist in recruitment efforts at both the undergraduate and graduate level. By conducting outreach to the coaching institutes and tutoring services that sway students' final decisions about where to attend college and graduate school, and re-connecting with alumni who desire to serve as ambassadors of the University, the Brazil Gateway will build the relationships that have been shown to affect the educational decisions of international students and their families. The Brazil Gateway will also serve as the first point of contact between Brazilian students and the University, ensuring higher responsiveness and personalized attention to the needs of curious international students and their families toward the critical decision of where to attend college.

2. Faculty and Staff

Another key constituency to serve for the Brazil Gateway will be Ohio State faculty. We aim to create broader collaboration with key organizations in Brazil that are of strategic importance to our University. We will work to create institutional partnerships with international academic entities to strengthen our position in the region and provide opportunities for our faculty to strengthen their research. We aim to sign at least two meaningful Memorandums of Agreement or Understanding (MOU/MOA) with these institutions per year and the Brazil Gateway office will be instrumental in scouting these opportunities and presenting them to our faculty and colleges. In some cases, such support has led to the creation of dual-degree graduate programs with privileged partners in Gateway regions, including a dual PhD program with Shanghai Jiao-Tong University in Electrical Engineering and a dual-degree graduate program in Translational Plant Sciences with the University of São Paulo – ESALQ.

In addition, the Brazil Gateway office will serve our faculty and colleges by providing educational intelligence about the current climate within the higher education landscape in Brazil. The Gateway office will also compile country specific data about grants and funding opportunities for Ohio State faculty to travel in the region and conduct joint research with potential partners. For example, Ohio State and the Brazil state of São Paulo created a $1.4 million funding source to support research and innovation. This is the largest agreement signed by FAPESP and will serve as a model for what we hope to achieve with other Brazilian states (e.g., Parana) as well as with CAPES (federal) for all of Brazil. We are already in discussions with both UFPR and with CAPES about such opportunities.

The Brazil Gateway in conjunction with the Global Gateways office will continue to provide annual gateway grant opportunities for faculty in funding the creation of new study abroad opportunities in gateway countries, research collaborations, and interactive classroom modules. In addition, the Brazil Gateway will work with specific Colleges and Departments to create relevant grant programs. For instance, the Gateway is working with the Public Health Preparedness for Infectious Diseases (PHPID) group to create specific opportunities for faculty to engage in Brazil.

The Brazil Gateway office will create a detailed database of Ohio State collaborations in the region with the aim of being a central repository of information for everything occurring in Brazil. We will establish a baseline of university activity and attempt to grow the number of meaningful collaborations annually through assisting faculty and staff with their on-going academic relationships.

Programs and Services for Ohio State Alumni

The Brazil Gateway will serve the University's advancement goals by significantly increasing alumni engagement and accelerating the University's ability to achieve its development goals. By engaging OSU alumni in Brazil through networking events, the creation of an alumni contact infrastructure such as a directory website, and a country-specific alumni association, the Brazil Gateway will activate networks of alumni throughout the country, allowing them to engage with one another, as well as the University. By building both the technological as well as personal, relationship-based infrastructure to engage with international alumni, the Brazil Gateway will strive to serve the interests of all alumni. Younger alumni will be able to meet more experienced alumni, and experienced alumni will be able to participate in activities that will serve their desire to socialize or give back, whether by serving as interviewers for potential students, or as alumni mentors. Alumni interaction with the university, no matter the stage of life of the alumni, will be a rewarding experience that will only add value to alumni and deepen the University's relationship with its alumni worldwide. Alumni are very motivated by Ohio State's engagement in Brazil and very interested in endeavors related to their countries.

April 4, 2014 meeting, Board of Trustees

By deepening the University's relationship with alumni, increasing outreach to alumni who are unaware of the University's commitment to their country, and collaborating with the Office of Advancement to improve international donor cultivation, the Brazil Gateway office will help identify major gift donor prospects and provide the Development Office with the information needed to optimize its international fundraising campaign. In the short-term, the Brazil Gateway will use its alumni relationships, networks, and activities to generate positive awareness of the University's commitment to the region and its alumni will motivate potential major donors to more easily re-connect with the University. Additionally, the processes implemented with the assistance of Development will ensure that promising prospects are funneled into the appropriate cultivation and stewardship process, accelerating the time to a major gift donation from an alumnus.

These engagement and advancement programs and associated processes will not generate significant revenue, but there is potential that alumni engagement could lead to gifts in direct support of Ohio State Gateway operations. These endeavors will directly contribute to gifts and fundraising from alumni in Brazil, supporting a broad-range of programming to include study abroad and tuition scholarships.

Programs and Services for Ohio State Corporate Partners

With the growing presence of Ohio businesses' goods and services in the world marketplace, our region plays a vital role in the future of US economic and GDP growth. With the state's geographic location and access to markets through a highly integrated rail, road, and inland waterway transportation infrastructure, significant investment has been made by businesses, both foreign and domestic, in the Central Ohio region. As the premier research-focused university in the region, Ohio State has a great opportunity to further contribute to the foreign direct investment into our region as well as assist in the global competitiveness of the businesses that find their home in the Columbus area. Ohio State possesses a wide range of resources attractive to our local businesses and creating a strong partnership is a win-win situation for all parties involved.

International Corporate Partnership Program (ICPP)

The Global Gateways will create partnerships with international corporations to increase collaboration on a global level. The office will target corporations with current ties to the University and its programs as well as a number of additional Ohio-based businesses. The future goal will include recruiting and maintaining relationships with foreign corporations with operations in Gateway regions. The Global Gateway Office will work closely with these select corporations to understand their unique needs based on their industry, size, strategic goals, requirements on talents, etc.

1. Workforce Training and Education Services

Customized workforce training and education programs will be executed in conjunction with various academic units on campus. The Global Gateways will conduct marketing and business development activities in the Gateway regions to highlight Ohio State expertise in a variety of fields and will work with Ohio State Colleges to develop programs and services for corporate partners. College units will focus on curriculum and delivery while the Gateway office will provide logistical support and facilitation in-country and on the main campus, where the programs will be delivered. We will conduct market surveys upon entry into Brazil and work with the Colleges to develop opportunities and market them in the region. For scouting the opportunities, marketing, and providing logistical support, the Global Gateway office will be charged an overhead rate of 23% of the program. The Global Gateways have conducted 7 programs in the last academic year.

2. Career Services

The Global Gateway Program will create a platform of services that will benefit our corporate partners by providing talent to their workforce. With the number of international students currently enrolled at Ohio State, we are in the unique position to provide our corporate partners with a number of resources to meet their growing needs for international staffing. The Global Gateway office will work with individual Career Services offices at the various colleges of the University to appropriately match students with our corporate partners. We will accomplish this through the following sub-programs:

- a. Internships – As our corporate partners expand their operations globally, they are consistently looking for talented people that not only know how to function in their home environment, but also can operate on an international level. These custom-designed programs can take a number of forms. Our office will work with the various colleges to identify and match students, both graduate and under-graduate, to corporate partner needs. Internships can be conducted at local operations here in the US, or at our corporate partners' overseas locations. Our individual Gateway offices in China, India, Brazil, Turkey, etc. will support student international internships with providing advice and support on overseas logistics to include accommodation, travel, etc. This program will be closely aligned with the Global Internship Program.
 - b. Job Vacancy Recruiting – We will work with our corporate partners to fill open positions in their global operations. With our wealth of 6,000+ international students and a growing number of internationally-minded US students, we maintain a vast pool of resources from which our corporate partners can draw. In addition, OSU currently has thousands of alumni overseas that are continually searching for employment opportunities. We will collect position vacancies and circulate within our network as well as actively recruit talented students and alumni. The Global Gateway office will also launch a web-based job vacancy board where our students and alumni can access current requirements from corporate partners
 - c. Specialized Dual Degree Programs – We will partner with other highly regarded international universities to create dual degree programs so that graduates will attain region specific expertise and professional practices. Potential corporate partners have expressed great interest in this idea.

Management & Staffing Plan

The Global Gateways office is headquartered on the main campus of The Ohio State University. The office is overseen by the Vice-Provost for Global Strategies and International Affairs, and currently employs two full-time FTEs, a Director and a Business Operations Coordinator. In the next five years, we expect to expand the staff in Columbus to four FTEs.

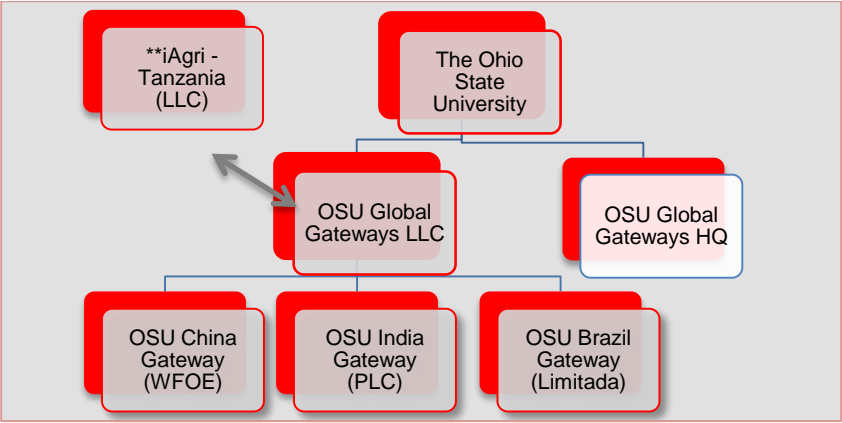

To establish the various offices around the globe and incorporate them in the local region, the university created the OSU Global Gateways LLC as an affiliated entity and parent company of the various Gateway offices. This Ohio LLC is managed by two directors: a President and a Secretary/Treasurer. The LLC is governed by a board of four directors, consisting of four Ohio State employees: the Executive Vice President and Provost, the Vice-Provost for Global Strategies and International Affairs, the Senior Vice President and CFO, and the Senior Vice-President and General Counsel.

For the first two years of operation, the Brazil Gateway office will employ one FTE to commence operations for Ohio State. This Gateway Director will not be an employee of The Ohio State University, but will be contracted through the local Limitada in Brazil. Ideally, we are searching for an individual that holds a graduate degree from Ohio State that understands the culture in Brazil and that will be independently able to obtain a permanent work authorization visa. This Director will report directly to the Global Gateways Director based on the main campus in Columbus. We anticipate the need to hire one additional staff member during the 2015-2016 academic year, followed by one in the 2016-2017 academic year.

Before commencing operations, Ohio State must apply for and receive the appropriate business license in order to conduct business in Brazil. The commercial license we will apply for is known as a Limitada and the application process takes approximately four months from submission of all materials to issuance. Having established a Limited Liability Company (LLC) to apply for a commercial license in China and India, we have already undergone much of the work in terms of structuring the operation in the state of Ohio. As this LLC is an affiliated entity of The Ohio State University, the university will not be the owner of the Limitada, but our LLC, the OSU Global Gateways LLC, will maintain authority for the operation.

The Ohio State Brazil Gateway and the Global Gateway program is not a for-profit enterprise. Although operating as a University Affiliated Entity with overseas subsidiaries with a commercial business license equivalent to a U.S. LLC, the core mission of the Global Gateways will be academic in nature. These offices operate to provide value to the core academic mission of Ohio State but have a secondary goal of offering a platform of programs and services to raise revenue to be self-sustaining in the future. This is a crucial aspect of the Global Gateways to continue to support the University on a global level, as funding will decrease over time.

Global Gateways Organizational Chart (Proposed)

 iAgri-Tanzania was created as an Ohio LLC to execute the conditions for a USAID grant under the College of Food, Agriculture and Environmental Sciences. This entity falls under the OSU Global Gateways LLC for legal purposes but is under the operational control of CFAES, and not a Global Gateway activity.

Financial Plan

With the platform of programs and services listed above, the Global Gateways greatly enhance the internationalization agenda for The Ohio State University. At the onset of this project, the Global Gateways were provided start-up funding for the first Gateway office in Shanghai, China. The intent of this investment was to build the office and the programs and services to an anticipated level of self-sustainment within the first five years of operation. Funding for the Global Gateway office in India came from annual contribution commitments from various colleges and departmental units on campus with the aim of self-sustainment.

After three years of operations for the Global Gateways, and experimenting in a great number of potential programs to generate revenue to offset the expenses, we believe the assumption of self-sustaining global offices is not feasible with the current staffing model of the Global Gateway offices and the primary goal of supporting the academic mission of The Ohio State University internationally. The Gateway office in China has generated a minor amount of revenue, but the value created for The Ohio State University has been substantial.

The Brazil Gateway will be funded and supported by the Office of Academic Affairs. For Academic Year 2013-2014, the office will begin the work of incorporating in Brazil with a contribution of $87k from OAA. OAA will further contribute $160k and $215k for academic years 2014-2015 and 2015-2016 respectively. Detailed metrics have been developed for the Global Gateways program as a whole, and will be refined and focused for Brazil after developing benchmarks after one year of operation. These metrics will serve to validate the value the Brazil Gateway has created for Ohio State.

In this section, we will list our revenue-generating activities conducted to date with a list of potential future offerings, especially for those in Brazil.

Grants

The Global Gateway office has been instrumental in the planning, application and execution process in two State Department awards of $150,000 in total for The Ohio State University. The Gateway office has further facilitated in over $400,000 in grant applications that are currently under review.

The Global Gateways office has also been instrumental in forming a new partnership with Fundação de Amparo à Pesquisa do Estado de São Paulo (FAPESP) in Brazil that has created a $1.4 million funding source to support research and innovation. The partnership encourages researchers at Ohio State to collaborate with university researchers in the state of São Paulo. Ohio State has committed $700k and FAPESP has agreed to match that commitment.

International Corporate Partnership Program

Through seven previous customized workforce development education programs, the Global Gateways have received approximately $112,000 in profit from contracted work. In addition, the partner academic units at Ohio State are estimated to bring in over $50,000. These partner units include the Colleges that are conducting the primary education to the customers.

The Global Gateway received one gift of $10,000 from a corporate partner to assist in the establishment of a customized internship program.

Gifts

The Global Gateway office has received nearly $50,000 in cash gifts to support operations. In addition, the India Gateway office space has been gifted by an alum for a five-year period and valued at over $500,000. We have also been offered gifted space to operate our Brazil Gateway office in São Paulo.

Potential Programs

The establishment of Ohio State's Office of Economic & Workforce Development could lead to a number of future opportunities for the university to generate revenue in Gateway regions. Using the Gateway offices to connect international corporations to university Intellectual Property (IP) and research through the Office of Economic & Workforce Development and the Technology Commercialization Office (TCO) provides a great platform for potential revenues. With the potential expansion of West Campus activities, partnering with these growing corporations and facilitating interactions with the Office of Economic & Workforce Development could lead to substantial foreign direct investment in the region.

With the inception of Ohio State's Office of Distance Education and eLearning, further opportunities exist for substantial revenue for the university. With the vastly populous markets of China, India, and Brazil hungry for US-based education, the Global Gateway offices have much to offer in developing opportunities and marketing potential offerings in the region. Plans are already underway on one specific program in collaboration with the College of Pharmacy to deliver a certificate program in China, with great potential for revenue.

The Ohio State University Board of Trustees
Finance Committee
April 3, 2014

TOPICS: Tuition Waiver for Third Party Provider/Direct Enroll Study Abroad Programs and the Establishment of a Fee for participating students.

CONTEXT: The purpose of this report is to outline the need for a tuition waiver for students participating in Third Party Provider/Direct Enroll Study Abroad programs and the establishment of a fee for those participating students.

SUMMARY: Currently, Ohio State students pay a uniform instructional fee and general fee regardless of major or classes in which they are enrolled. Students participating in Third Party Provider/Direct Enroll Study Abroad programs must pay the tuition or charge for the these programs and all related costs in addition to the instructional and general fees at The Ohio State University. This results in students either paying in essence two tuition payments for the term in which they are enrolled in such programs or dis-enrolling at the Ohio State University to reduce the financial burden. Dis-enrolling causes the student to be “off our radar” and to be at risk for travel-related situations such as manmade or natural disasters and medical emergencies.

Therefore, the administration is seeking to establish a tuition waiver for students enrolled in these programs and to establish a fee of $400 for program services, such as risk management and administration. State law only allows a waiver of tuition if it is authorized by law or approved by the Chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents. Based on procedures established by the Ohio Board of Regents, the Board of Trustees must first pass a resolution approving the tuition waiver prior to submitting a request for the tuition waiver to the state. (See Attachment A for Ohio Revised Code Section 363.230.)

REQUESTED OF THE FINANCE COMMITTEE: Approval of the attached resolution approving a tuition waiver for Third Party Provider/Direct Enroll Study Abroad programs and the establishment of a $400 fee for participating students.

Background

Currently, Ohio State students pay a uniform instructional fee and general fee regardless of major or classes in which they are enrolled. While this structure works for the majority of the programs offered by the Ohio State University, it results in an inequitable situation for students who wish to participate in Third Party Provider/Direct Enroll Study Abroad programs with other institutions. As currently structured, students participating in these programs must pay the tuition or charge for the Third Party Provider or Direct Enroll program and all related costs in addition to the instructional and general fees at The Ohio State University.

This results in one of two situations:

1. Students who enroll in these programs have an undue financial burden placed upon them and their families by paying two tuition payments – one to Ohio State and one to the host institution; or,
2. Students take a leave of absence or dis-enroll in order to directly enroll in the host institution. After the program is completed, the student re-enrolls in Ohio State and applies for transfer credit for the academic work completed. Furthermore, students are not able to access federal or institutional financial aid. In addition, these students are not on “our radar” should a natural disaster, medical emergency or political or manmade disaster occur, resulting in Ohio State not being able to assist the students abroad.

In order to remedy the financial burden and to mitigate risks to the students, the administration has decided to seek a tuition waiver for participating students. However, Ohio law requires that instructional fees be charged uniformly across all students and Boards of Trustees cannot authorize a waiver of tuition for a group of students unless authorized by law or approved by the Chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents. (See Attachment A for Ohio Revised Code Section 363.230.)

In order to seek approval of a waiver of tuition, an institution must adopt a resolution by the Board of Trustees and then submit a waiver request to the Ohio Board of Regents.

In addition to requesting approval of a resolution to waive tuition and request a waiver from the Ohio Board of Regents, the administration is requesting to establish a fee to cover the administrative costs of the study abroad programs, including insurance and risk mitigation for the students. This fee will be set at $400 per program.

Ohio Revised Code Section 363.230. HIGHER EDUCATION - BOARD OF TRUSTEES

- (A) Funds appropriated for instructional subsidies at colleges and universities may be used to provide such branch or other off-campus undergraduate courses of study and such master's degree courses of study as may be approved by the Chancellor of the Board of Regents.
- (B) In providing instructional and other services to students, boards of trustees of state institutions of higher education shall supplement state subsidies with income from charges to students. Except as otherwise provided in this act, each board shall establish the fees to be charged to all students, including an instructional fee for educational and associated operational support of the institution and a general fee for noninstructional services, including locally financed student services facilities used for the benefit of enrolled students. The instructional fee and the general fee shall encompass all charges for services assessed uniformly to all enrolled students. Each board may also establish special purpose fees, service charges, and fines as required; such special purpose fees and service charges shall be for services or benefits furnished individual students or specific categories of students and shall not be applied uniformly to all enrolled students. A tuition surcharge shall be paid by all students who are not residents of Ohio.

The board of trustees of a state institution of higher education shall not authorize a waiver or nonpayment of instructional fees or general fees for any particular student or any class of students other than waivers specifically authorized by law or approved by the Chancellor. This prohibition is not intended to limit the authority of boards of trustees to provide for payments to students for services rendered the institution, nor to prohibit the budgeting of income for staff benefits or for student assistance in the form of payment of such instructional and general fees.

BACKGROUND

The City of Columbus has requested an easement for roadway purposes for traffic control devices and signals to support a multi-use trail to be constructed by the City from West North Broadway to Ackerman Road. The proposed trail will connect at Ackerman Road to OSU's existing trail, which runs south to Lane Avenue. The extension of the trail to the north, to West North Broadway, is part of the City's plan to extend the trail system to points further north, such as the existing pedestrian bridge over State Route 315 and Henderson Road.

The easement will be located on university land adjoining the impacted intersection. This requested easement comprises approximately .01 acres. The easement acreage is subject to final negotiations and survey.

The monetary consideration for the proposed easement is $1.00.

This action is being brought before the Board of Trustees because easements for street, roadway, or highway purposes of any term require Board approval.

BACKGROUND

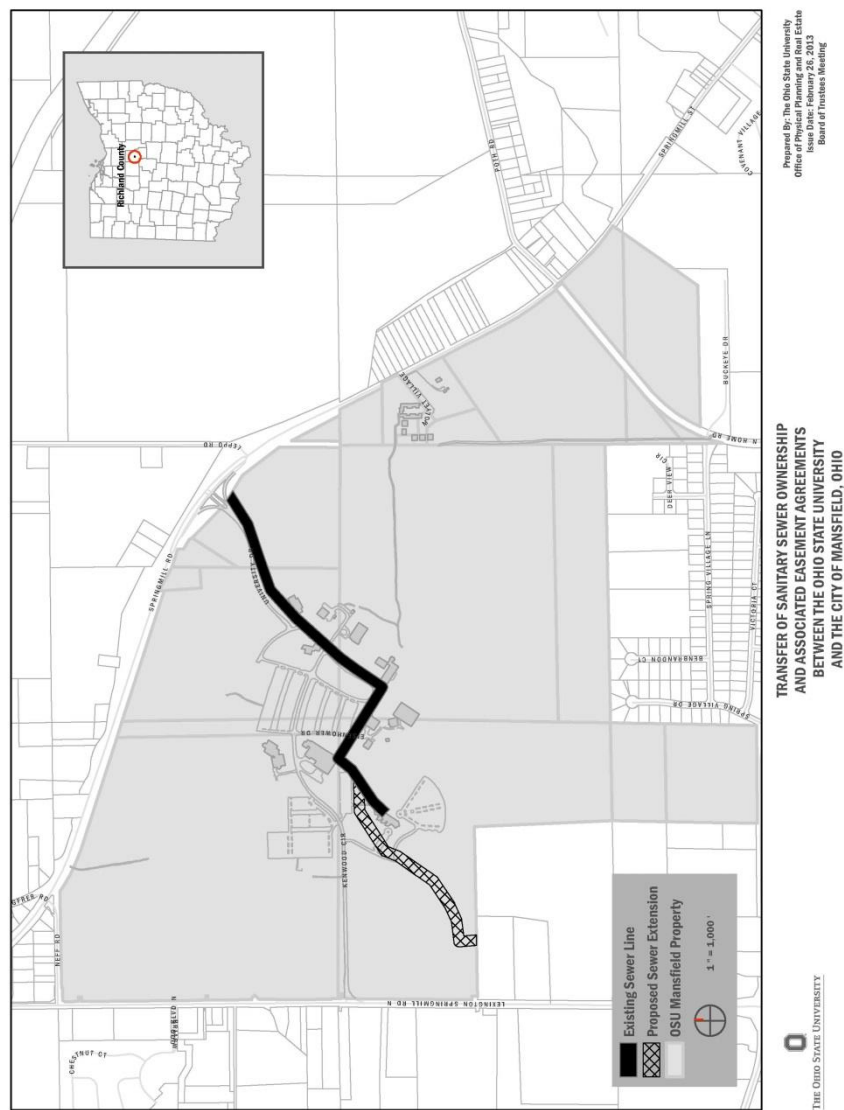

Leadership at OSU's Mansfield campus is seeking approval to transfer ownership of the campus' main sanitary sewer line to the City of Mansfield. As owner, the City would become responsible for the ongoing maintenance and management of the line. This action would save OSU Mansfield approximately $13,000-$26,000 annually. The transfer would be completed through a bill of sale and would also require OSU to grant an easement to the City covering the area where the line is located. The existing line is approximately 4,000 linear feet and the proposed easement comprises roughly 2 acres. Final acreage will be determined by survey.

In addition, the campus would like to grant the City an easement to extend the sewer to the southwest campus boundary, thereby allowing the City to expand its sewer service to new customers. The proposed easement for the approximately 2,000 linear foot extension would cover about 1 acre. A 2.5 acre temporary construction easement would also be needed for the extension. Final easement acreages will be determined by survey.

Physical Planning and Real Estate (PPARE) recommends that the required easements have a perpetual term. In order to grant a perpetual utility easement, OSU must obtain approval from the state legislature. PPARE suggests proceeding with a 25-year easement that does not require legislative approval in the near-term while simultaneously seeking legislative approval for an eventual perpetual easement.

The monetary consideration for the proposed perpetual easement and bill of sale is $1.00.

This action is being brought before the Board of Trustees because easements for terms greater than 25 years require Board approval and because PPARE would like Board approval to transfer ownership of the sewer.

(APPENDIX XXXVII)

BACKGROUND

The City of Columbus has requested a roadway easement for traffic control devices and signals in support of its Neil Avenue Signal Upgrade project as well as a roadway easement for traffic control devices and signals necessitated by OSU's landscaping project along High Street. These easements are summarized below:

- Neil Avenue easement: This City of Columbus project will replace eight traffic signals on Neil Avenue between Goodale Street and 11th Avenue. The work will remove overhead traffic-signal cables at the intersections and add pedestrian features. The City has requested a series of easements at impacted university intersections totaling approximately 0.05 acres for a 25-year term. Final acreages to be determined by survey.
- High Street easement: OSU will be relocating traffic control equipment and infrastructure at 18th Avenue and along High Street as part of a landscaping project. This work will necessitate a roadway easement to the City of Columbus. The easement will total approximately 0.5 acres and be granted for a 25-year term. Final acreages to be determined by survey.

The monetary consideration for the proposed easements is $1.00.

This action is being brought before the Board of Trustees because easements for street, roadway, or highway purposes of any term require Board approval.
